- M50 Bianchi Bandinelli, Ranuccio. La pittura antica. A cura di Filippo Carelli e Luisa Franchi dell'Orto. Roma, Riuniti, [1980]. x, 245p. il. (part col.), plates. (Biblioteca di storia antica, 11)

Collection of essays by an important scholar of classical art who has written widely on Roman, Etruscan, and Hellenistic subjects. Unfortunately printed on poor-quality paper with mediocre illustrations.

Contents: (1) Problemi generali; (2) Studi e note; (3) Problemi e tecniche della pittura antica.

Table of Greek painters working in Rome, p.228–31. Abbreviations, p.237–8. Index, p.239–45.

- M51 Doxiadis, Euphrosyne. The mysterious Fayum portraits: faces from Ancient Egypt. Foreword by Dorothy J. Thompson. [N.Y.], Abrams, [1995]. 247p. il. (part col.), col. plates, maps.

Popular study of the funerary portraits from the Fayum region produced during the Greco-Roman period. Exceptional color illustrations and descriptions are arranged by the sites where the paintings were collected. The author is not a scholar but approaches these works as a painter in trying to make links between them and later Byzantine art.

Select bibliography, p.241–3. Index, p.244–6.

M52 Ancient faces: mummy portraits from Roman Egypt. [Ed. by] Susan Walker . . . [et al.] [London], pub. For the Trustees of the British Museum by British Museum Pr., [1997]. 224p. il. (part col.), map. (Catalogue of Roman portraits in the British Museum, IV)

Serves as exhibition catalog as well as collection catalog. Concise introduction to Greco-Roman portrait paintings. Six essays provide historical background.

Selective contents: Before the portraits: burial practices in Pharaonic Egypt, by John Taylor; Mummy portraits and Roman portraiture, by Susan Walker; The Fayum and its people, by R. S. Bagnall; Technique, by Euphrosyne C. Doxiadis; The discovery of the mummy portraits, by Morris Bierbrier; The conservation of the portraits and associated antiquities, by Gillian Roy.

M85 Daszewski, Wiktor Andrzej. Corpus of mosaics from Egypt I. Mainz, Zabern, 1985- . (1)v. il. (part col.) (Aegyptiaca Treverensia, 3)

First of a 2-vol. set cataloging mosaics found in Egypt; the second vol. will cover late Roman and Byzantine mosaics. Although not as numerous in Egypt as elsewhere in North Africa, the mosaics in Egypt are shown to have elements in common and distinct from others in the Roman Empire.

Contents: (1) Hellenistic and early Roman period (1985).

M86 Le Décor géométrique de la mosaïque romaine: répertoire graphique et descriptif des compositions linéaires et isotopes. Catherine Balmelle . . . [et al.] Dessins de Richard Prudhomme. Paris, Picard, 1985. 431p. il.

Compiled by members of the Association Internationale pour l'Étude de la Mosaïque Romaine, this vol. is a catalog of hundreds of decorative motifs used in Roman mosaics, including standardized terminology in English, French, German, Italian, and Spanish. Separate glossaries provide French equivalents for each language. Excellent pen-and-ink drawings illustrate each example; related motifs are illustrated on the same page to allow comparison.

M87 Demus, Otto. Byzantine mosaic decoration: aspects of monumental art in Byzantium. [Reprint.] New Rochelle, Caratzas, 1976. xiii, 97p. il. 64p. of plates.

Originally published London, Paul, Trench, Trubner, 1948.

This essay remains a fundamental study of Byzantine mosaics.

Index, p.95-97.

M88 ———. The mosaics of San Marco in Venice. Chicago, Univ. of Chicago Pr., [1984]. 2v. in 4., il. (part col.)

The first detailed study of the medieval mosaics in San Marco, produced concurrently with a major campaign to photograph the entire interior. The author is the preeminent scholar of mosaics and his work on San Marco spans fifty years. V.1 covers the work of the 11th and 12th centuries; v.2 treats the 13th century. Each is accompanied by a separate vol. of plates, many of which are in magnificent color. Each vol. contains extensive bibliography and indexes of subjects, topography, names, and other topics.

M89 Dunbabin, Katherine M. D. The mosaics of Roman North Africa: studies in iconography and patronage. N.Y., Oxford Univ. Pr., 1978. xx, 303p. il. (part col.) 80p. of plates, maps. (Oxford monographs on classical archaeology)

"Although the opening and closing chapters deal with general aspects, and attempt to place African mosaics within the wider context of mosaic production in the rest of the Roman Empire, in the main part of the book I have concentrated on a study of the classes of subject-matter used on the figured mosaics."—Pref.

Selective bibliography, p.280-9. Indexes, p.292-300.

M90 ———. Mosaics of the Greek and Roman world. N.Y., Cambridge Univ. Pr., 2000. 357p. il. (part col.), plates, maps.

"Provides a comprehensive account of mosaics of the ancient world from the early pebble mosaics of Greece to the pavements of Christian churches in the east."—Pub. note.

M91 Kitzinger, Ernst. I mosaici del periodo normanno in Sicilia. Palermo, Accademia nazionale di scienze lettere e arti di Palermo, 1992- . (5)v. il. plates, plans.

Ongoing pictorial catalog of Norman mosaics, bringing together hundreds of photographs taken in three substantial campaigns in 1929, 1951, and 1954. Each fasc. includes a brief textual overview, a list of figures, and plans or elevations to indicate the placement of each section.

Contents: (1) La Capella Palatina di Palermo: i mosaici del Presbiterio (1992); (2) La Capella Palatina: i mosaici delle Navate (1993); (3) Il duomo di Monreale: i mosaici dell'abside, della solea e delle cappelle laterali (1994); (4) Il duomo di Monreale: i mosaici del transetto (1995); (5) Il duomo di Monreale: i mosaici dell'navate (1996).

M92 Ling, Roger. Ancient mosaics. Princeton, Princeton Univ. Pr., 1998. 144p. 95 il. (part col.), map.

Well-illustrated introductory survey of Greek and Roman mosaics. "Ling traces chronologically and geographically the materials and techniques employed to decorate floors, and later walls and vaults and also addresses the functions and placement of mosaics, their diverse motifs, relations to work in other media, the aims of their patrons, and status of their creators."—Review, Bryn Mawr classical review, April 23, 1999.

Glossary, p.138–39. Select bibliography, p.140–41. Index p.142–44.

M93 Mosaici antichi in Italia. Roma, Istituto poligrafico e Zecca dello Stato, 1967–. (8)v. il. (part col.), maps, plans.

See GLAH 1:M92 for earlier vols.

Ongoing corpus of mosaics in Italy. Well-illustrated, with detailed plans and catalog entries.

Contents: Angiolillo, Simonetta. Sardinia (1981); Pisapia, Maria Stella. Regione 1, Stabiae (1989); Guidobaldi, Federico. Sectilia pavimentata di Villa Adriana (1994).

M94 Mosaics. General ed., Carlo Bertelli. [Written by] Xavier Barral i Altet . . . [et al.] N.Y., Gallery Books, [1989]. 360p., col. il.

Trans. of Il mosaico. Milan, Mondadori, 1988.

Pictorial survey of the uses of mosaic from classical times to the present; brief historical chapters are each followed by a selection of good quality illustrations.

Contents: Ancient mosaics, by Carlo Bertelli; The Christian world, by Per Jonas Nordhagen; Byzantine treasures, by Per Jonas Nordhagen; Mosaic vaults and floors in Islam and the West, Xavier Barral i Altet; Renaissance mosaics, by Carlo Bertelli; Mosaic in the eighteenth century, by Maria Grazia Branchetti; From traditional to modern styles, by Agnoldomenico Pica.

M95 Mosaics of Roman Africa: floor mosaics from Tunisia. [Par] Michèle Blanchard-Lemée . . . [et al.] Photographs by Gilles Mermet. Trans. from the French by Kenneth D. Whitehead. N.Y., Braziller, 1996. 296p. col. il., plans.

Trans. of Sols de l'Afrique romaine. Paris, Imprimerie nationale, 1995.

"Focus[es] . . . on the patrons of the mosaic artisans, the prominent people in the province and in its various cities who, individually and collectively, commissioned these floors."—Introd. While concentrating specifically on mosaics from Tunisia, this book presents stunning color illustrations, organized thematically.

Select bibliography, p.296. No index.

M96 Ovadiah, Asher. Geometric and floral patterns in ancient mosaics: a study of their origin in the mosaics from the classical period to the age of Augustus. Roma, Bretschneider, 1980. 205p. il., plates, map.

"The main concern of this work is . . . to study the origins of the geometric and floral patterns of mosaic pavements by seeking comparative material from the earlier arts."—Introd. Although this study synthesizes a broad range of mosaic pattern, its presentation is somewhat marred by inadequate illustrations. Note also that the plates are not directly referred to in the text. Abbreviations and bibliography, p.11–16. No index.

M97 ———, and Ovadiah, Ruth. Hellenistic, Roman and early Byzantine mosaic pavements in Israel. [Roma], Bretschneider, [1987]. 276p. il. (part col.), 192p. of plates. (Bibliotheca archaeologica, 6)

Serves as a sequel to the catalog by Michael Avi-Yonah, Mosaic pavements in Palestine (1933–35); this volume deals with mosaics discovered in the region between 1935 and 75. Organized by site. "The work is unfortunately incomplete in parts, as full details are not always given in the publications, and also because we were not in a position to examine the pavements for ourselves."—Pref.

M102 Corpus der byzantinischen Miniaturenhandschriften. Hrsg. von Otto Demus. Red., Irmgard Hutter. Stuttgart, Hiersemann, 1977–. (4)v. in 8. il. (part col.) (Denkmäler der Buchkunst, Bd. 2–3, 5:1–2, 9:1–2)

See GLAH 1:M96 for original annotation.

Initial vols. of complete corpus of Byzantine manuscripts.

Contents: (1) Hutter, Irmgard. Oxford Bodleian Library I (1977); (2) Hutter, Irmgard. Oxford Bodleian Library II (1978); (3) Hutter, Irmgard. Oxford Bodleian Library III (2v., 1982); (4) Hutter, Irmgard. Oxford Christ Church (2v., 1993); (5) Hutter, Irmgard. Oxford College Libraries (2v., 1997).

M103 Cutler, Anthony. The aristocratic psalters in Byzantium. [Paris], Picard, [1984]. 253p. il. (Bibliothèque des cahiers archéologiques, 13)

Descriptive catalog of 58 Byzantine illuminated psalters; each entry contains a verbal description of each illumination as well as bibliography. The author intended a companion volume of analysis that has not yet appeared.

Bibliographic abbreviations, p.10–14. Index, p.121–23.

M104 Ethnike Bibliothek. Catalogue of the illuminated Byzantine manuscripts of the Library of Greece. By Anna Marav-Chatzinicolaou, Christina Toufexi-Paschou. Athens, Publications Bureau of the Academy of Athens, 1978–. (2)v. il. (part col.).

Detailed catalog of 135 manuscripts (to date) from the National Library collection; a third vol. will deal with psalters and other Byzantine manuscripts. Particularly useful as these manuscripts have been scarcely published; the numerous color details will be particularly welcome. Each vol. includes bibliographic abbreviations and an index; manuscript entries contain descriptions of each folio, provenance, and bibliographic references.

Contents: (1) Manuscripts of New Testament texts 10th–12th century (1978); (2) Manuscripts of New Testament texts 13th–15th century (1985).

M105 The icon. [By] Kurt Weitzmann . . . [et al.] N.Y., Knopf, 1982. 419p. il. (chiefly col.)

Originally published as Le icone. Milan, Mondadori, 1981. French and German eds.

Lavishly illustrated and wide-ranging introductory survey of the history of icons.

Contents: (1) The icons of Constantinople, by Kurt Weitzmann; (2) The icons of Georgia, by Gainé Alibegashvili and Aneli Volskaya; (3) The icons of the Balkan peninsula and the Greek islands (1), by Manolis Chatzidakis and Gordana Babic; (4) The icons of the period of the Crusades, by Kurt Weitzmann; (5) The icons of Russia, by Mihail Alpatov; (6) The icons of the Balkan peninsula and the Greek islands (2), by Gordana Babic and Manolis Chatzidakis; (7) The post-Byzantine icons of Wallachia and Moldavia, by Teodora Voinescu.

M106 Illuminierte Papyri, Pergamente und Papiere I. Hrsg. von Ulrike Horak. Wien, Holzhausen, [1992]. 2v. in 1. il. (part col.). (Pegasus Oriens, 1)

First volume of catalog of the illustrated Byzantine and Coptic papyrus collection in the Austrian National Library. Includes detailed entries on 67 fragments of manuscripts on papyrus, parchment, and paper. Useful for its summary list of 359 published fragments in other collections, with index of terms, p.262–78.

Abgekürzt zitierte Literatur, p.12–16. Weitere benützte Literatur, p.17–24. Sachindex zu den hier edierten Objekten, p.199–209. Allgemeiner Sachindex, p.210–22. Griechische und koptische Wörter, p.223. Verzeichnis zitierter Papyri, p.224–26.

M107 The illustrations in the manuscripts of the Septuagint. Ed. by Kurt Weitzmann, Herbert L. Kessler. Princeton, N.J., publ. for the Dept. of Art and Archaeology of Princeton Univ. by Princeton Univ. Pr., [1986–]. (2)v. (Princeton monographs in art and archaeology, 45).

The initial vols. of a long-awaited series originally proposed by Charles Rufus Morey at Princeton in the 1920s; six vols. were proposed, each to treat a separate category of Byzantine illustrations of books of the Old Testament.

Contents: (1) Weitzmann, Kurt, and Kessler, Herbert L. The Cotton Genesis: British Library Codex Cotton Otho B. VI (1986); (2) Weitzmann, Kurt, and Bernabò, Massimo. The Byzantine Octateuchs (1999).

M108 Lowden, John. Illuminated prophet books: a study of Byzantine manuscripts of the major and minor prophets. University Park, Penn. State Univ. Pr., [1988]. xvi, 128p. 92p. of plates (part col.)

Close study of small group of related manuscripts allows the author to "pose far-reaching questions about the nature of Byzantine manuscript painting."—Review, Speculum, v.66, 1991, p.437.

Notes, p.93–107. Catalogue of manuscripts, p.109–19. Ruling patterns, p.120–21. Descriptions of the prophets, p.122–23. Index, p.125–28.

M109 Talbot Rice, David, and Talbot Rice, Tamara. Icons and their dating: a comprehensive study of their chro- nology and provenance. London, Thames and Hudson, [1974]. 192p. il., plates (part col.)

U.S. ed: Woodstock, N.Y., Overlook, 1974.

"The purpose of this book is to provide a framework for the chronology of icons by reproducing and analysing almost all those which can be dated with any degree of precision."—Introd. Presented in the form of a catalog, this book attempts to establish the outlines of the study of icons. Chapters on Byzantium, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Greece, Cyprus, and Russia include short histories of icons in these regions, followed by "Notes to the plates," individual comments on specific images. An appendix lists recorded icon painters; another lists more dated icons not discussed here.

Index, p.189–92.

M110 Velmans, Tania. La peinture murale byzantine à la fin du Moyen age. Paris, Klincksieck, 1977–. (1)v. il. maps. (Bibliothèque des cahiers archéologiques, 11)

The first of a proposed 2-vol. study of Byzantine mural painting; v.2, intended to discuss each monument more fully, has not appeared yet. Arranged in two sections: The first discusses the historical background of mural painting, the second contains a summary of each relevant church organized chronologically and geographically. Numerous illustrations, but references are only made to these from the overview section.

Bibliographie, p.259–76. Index des noms, p.279–85. Index des noms de lieux, p.286–92. Index iconographique, p.293–303. Index des noms d'auteurs modernes, p.304–10.

M111 Weitzmann, Kurt. Late antique and early Christian book illumination. N.Y., Braziller, [1977]. 126p. il. (chiefly col.)

Intended for the general reader, an overview of the early history of illuminated manuscripts with 48 color plates, each representing an important manuscript of the Early Christian period. Brief commentary on each plate. Very select bibliography, mostly out-of-date.

M112 ———, and Galivaris, George. The Monastery of Saint Catherine at Mount Sinai, the illuminated Greek manuscripts. Princeton, Princeton Univ. Pr., [1990–]. (1)v. il., plates (part col.)

Well-illustrated catalog of the manuscripts held at Saint Catherine, site of one of the oldest monastic libraries; the author has also published on its icons and its architecture. A second vol. is intended to cover the manuscripts of the 13th–15th centuries. Thorough entries for the manuscripts include descriptions of each illumination, notes on condition, a section on iconography and style and extensive bibliography. A general index, iconographic index, and an index of manuscripts are included.

Contents: (1) From the ninth to the twelfth century.

M113 ———, and Kessler, Herbert L. The frescoes of the Dura synagogue and Christian art. Washington, D.C., Dumbarton Oaks, [1990]. xiv, 202p. 202 il. (Dumbarton Oaks studies, 28)

Discussion of the origins and influence of the narrative structure of the Dura Europos synagogue frescoes in both Early Christian and Byzantine art. The authors see these paintings as a key link between Jewish and Christian art of the period. Select bibliography, p.185–95. Index, p.197–202.

M114 Wilpert, Josef. Die romische Mosaiken der kirchlichen Bauten vom IV.-XIII. Jahrhundert. [Hrsg. von] Walter N. Schumacher. Freiburg im Breisgau, Herder, [1976]. 344p., 124 col. plates, part folded.

Partial reprint of the seminal work issued in 1916 as 2 vols. of a 4-vol. work: Die romischen Mosaiken und Malereien der kirchlichen Bauten vom IV. bis XIII. Jahrhundert (GLAH 1:M109). The original was particularly noted for its oversize, detailed color plates. This ed. attempts to replicate this quality; Schumacher has added descriptions of individual plates with updated bibliography; the number of illustrations has been slightly reduced.

See GLAH 1:M133 for previous vols. and original annotation.

Ongoing catalog of Carolingian manuscripts; each vol. deals with a specific school. A text vol. accompanies each portfolio of large scale plates. Catalog entries consist of detailed description of each illumination and decorated initial in addition to extensive bibliography. Indexes by name or place and by iconographic theme.

Contents: (5) Die Hofschule Karls des Kahlen; (6) Die Schule von Reims: [pt.]1, Von den Anfängen bis zur Mitte des 9. Jahrhunderts.

M144 Mayr-Harting, Henry. Ottonian book illumination, an historical study. [London], Harvey Miller, [1991]. 2v. il., col. plates, maps.

Expanded version of the author's Slade Lectures, delivered in 1987. This is the first major study of a group of manuscripts primarily studied until now by German scholars. Its arrangement makes it less useful as an introductory survey, however, than as a series of essays on the topic of Ottonian manuscripts.

Contents: Vol.1: (1) The origins of Ottonian art; (2) Christ-centered art; (3) Religion and politics in Ottonian art; (4) The gospel book of Otto III and the Pericopes Book of Henry II; Vol.2: (1) The Bamberg apocalyptic manuscripts of c.1000; (2) The manuscripts of Egbert of Trier; (3) Cologne; (4) Fulda: saints and sacramentaries; (5) Corvey; (6) Some eleventh-century trends.

Detailed bibliography, chronological table, index of manuscripts, iconographic index, general index.

M207 Cahn, Walter. Romanesque manuscripts: the twelfth century. London, Harvey Miller, 1996. 2v. il. (part col.), plates (part col.), map (Survey of manuscripts illuminated in France)

Detailed, scholarly catalog of 152 major French illuminated manuscripts from the 12th century. Selections include Bibles, liturgical books, lives of the saints, canon law, and literary and historical writings. Catalog entries include a physical and content description of the manuscript, provenance, references to the literature, and exhibition history. "The aim of this volume is to present a descriptive overview of manuscripts illuminated in France during the twelfth century. As a practical matter, such an enterprise must be selective, and my catalogue entries document only the high points of a very large and, as yet, inadequately studied production. Major works have been included as a matter of course, but it has been my special concern to attempt to exemplify, as far as possible, the range and variety of this body of illumination."—Pref.

M274 British sporting and animal paintings, 1655–1867: A catalogue compiled by Judy Egerton. London, Tate Gallery for the Yale Center for British Art, 1978. 382p. plates (part col.)

Selection of 400 British sporting and animal oil paintings by 111 artists from the 1,700 British paintings in the Paul Mellon Collection. Complete, descriptive catalog entries are arranged chronologically. Short biographies of artists are presented in order of their birth dates. "It is not an elitist selection: it includes all the sport and animal paintings c.1650–1850 which Paul Mellon has collected, and he chose each for its own appeal to him. The uneven quality of the paintings catalogued here accurately reflects the period's output. Stubbs' work stands out, as it does in any company."—Pref.

M455 Gaskell, Ivan. Seventeenth-century Dutch and Flemish painting: the Thyssen-Bornemisza collection. General ed. Simon de Pury. [London], Sotheby's, [1990]. 552p. il. (part col.)

One of the exemplary set of catalogs surveying the Thyssen Bornemisza collection. Written by a leading expert in the field and generously illustrated with color plates, entries for the collection's 128 17th-century paintings include provenance, exhibition history, and literature. "The entries are arranged in groups thematically and within each group more or less chronologically. This is in order to provide a text which is not simply a collection of discrete essays, but which exhibits some characteristics of a coherent account of several aspects of an art of the Netherlands during a long seventeenth century (c.1550–1740), incorporating a generous quantity of comparative material."—p.37.

German ed., Das goldene Zeitalter der holländischen Malerei. Köln, DuMont, 1984.

Massive work detailing the history of 400 Dutch painters of the Golden age with more than 1,000 works illustrated. "The overall scheme is chronological, divided into four parts. Part 1 introduces the major developments with a discussion of their 16th-century antecedents, followed by a digression on the artists' social position, their patrons, and the categories of subject matter; part 2 covers the period from about 1580 to 1625 and introduces the round of Dutch art centers which I continue to pursue in the rest of the book as a valid way of tying things together. The years of greatest glory in Dutch painting are treated in parts 3 and 4, the first from 1625 to 1650, the second from 1650 to about 1680."—Pref.

Spain and Portugal

M520 Ainaud de Lasarte, Joan. Catalan painting. [Trans. by Michael Heron.] N.Y., Rizzoli, 1990–92. 3v. col. il. Trans. of La Pintura Catalana. Barcelona, Carroggio, 1989–91.

Scholarly work with coverage from Romanesque mural painting to contemporary Catalan painting. "The first volume dealing with Romanesque art took as its starting point the actual works, grouped for easier understanding although in a way that inevitably proved conventional. In the second, the artists' names were often fleshed out by biographical material, yet insight into their ideas and aims was not possible. In this third volume, however, alongside the works treated we shall hear the artists' own voice, as well as that of critics, commentators, and contemporary poets and prose writers."—Introd.

Contents: (1) The fascination of the romanesque; (2) From Gothic splendor to the Baroque; (3) From the nineteenth to the surprising twentieth century.

Each vol. includes bibliography.

An index of all Chinese paintings, known to the author, by or attributed to artists active in the early periods. Organized by period, the artists' entries provide biographical information followed by lists of paintings grouped by collection or publication.

Contents: (1) T'ang, Sung, and Yüan. Two further vols. announced, on the Ming and Ch'ing periods.

- M593 ———. The painter's practice; how artists lived and worked in traditional China. N.Y., Columbia Univ. Pr., [1994]. xi, 187p. il. (part col.) (Brampton lectures in America, 29)

Based on four lectures delivered at Columbia University (1991), this study of the Chinese artist's life and work spans the time period from the Six Dynasties to the late 19th century. In an attempt to establish the contexts of creation of Chinese painting, the book presents a fascinating account of the social and economic aspects of Chinese painting. It examines the varied ways in which the patron conveyed his wishes to the artist, the ways the artist was rewarded if he complied, and the dilemma of the artist with too many commissions and impatient clients.

Trans. of Chung-kuo hua yen se ti yen chiu. T'ai-pei, Hua cheng shu chü, min kuo, 1985.

Yu Feian (1889–1959) was a prominent painter of flowers and birds who originally published this work to fill a gap in the literature about the use of color in Chinese painting. An important resource, not only for the preparation of traditional colors and their derivations, but for practical information on methods and formulas. Chapter 1 discusses sources for pigments, both mineral and vegetable, the manner in which color is fixed to the ground, and the method by which paper and silk are sized. Chapter 2 provides a brief history of the use of color since neolithic times. Chapter 3 covers the use and preparation of ink. Chapters 4 and 5 provide more technical discussion of color.

DICTIONARIES AND ENCYCLOPEDIAS

- N6 New York Public Library. Print file [microform]. Alexandria, Va., Chadwyck-Healey, 1991-. 4,456 microfiche il. + index (3 microfiche) issued in loose-leaf binder with [3]p. of introductory text.

A wide-ranging clippings and ephemera file on more than 15,000 printmakers, illustrators, and photographers. Surveys the history of Western printmaking from the 15th century to the present and Japanese printmaking from the 10th to the 20th centuries. The collection's particular strengths are American historical prints, 19th-century French and American prints, and an in-depth, representative collection of 20th-century American prints. The contents of each artist's file vary and may include exhibition brochures and small catalogs, gallery announcements, reviews, obituaries, magazine articles as well as reproduction and original prints. Much of the information found quickly in these files can only be traced elsewhere with difficulty, if at all. Most of the clippings have been sourced, further enhancing their value to scholars and researchers.

Index of 15,547 printmakers.

GENERAL WORKS

- N7 Adhémar, Jean. La gravure, des origines à nos jours. Avec la participation de Claude Roger-Marx et d'Eugène Rouir. Paris, Somogy, 1979. 319p. il. (part col.)

Readable historical survey by an authority.

Bibliographie, p.305-07. Index, p.309-19.

- N8 Amsterdam. Rijksmuseum. Rijksprentenkabinet. Ornamentprenten in het Rijksprentenkabinet. [Van] Marijnke de Jong, Irene de Groot. Amsterdam, Het Kabinet; 's-Gravenhage, Staatsuitgeverij, 1988-. (1)v. il.

Scholarly catalog of a great collection of ornament prints. V.1 includes 15th- and 16th-century Dutch, German, Eastern European, French, and Italian prints.

Contents: (1) 15de and 16de eeuw.

- N9 Bartsch, Adam von. The illustrated Bartsch. [Gen. ed.: Walter L. Strauss.] N.Y., Abaris, 1978-. (164)v. il.

See GLAH 1:N12 for a prepublication annotation of The illustrated Bartsch (TIB), and GLAH 1:N13 for the original Bartsch catalog, 21v., 1803-21. An important corpus of images that has resulted from an international project to supply illustrations for all of Bartsch's original entries and correct his errors of attribution and omission. The original idea was that, for each Bartsch volume, TIB would produce one volume of illustrations and one of commentary, in which misattributions would be corrected and prints, states, and other information unknown to Bartsch supplied. In practice, many of the original Bartsch volumes have needed more than two TIB volumes to illustrate and correct them; sometimes as many as eight have been required. Also, many volumes of additional material in such areas as 15th-century German book illustration and 19th-century French printmaking, which were not covered in the original Bartsch, have been added to TIB as "supplement" volumes. Particularly important among these is v.161-164, Richard S. Field, ed., German single-leaf woodcuts before 1500 (in progress), a project to illustrate and revise Wilhelm Ludwig Schreiber, Handbuch der Holz- und Metallschnitte des XV. Jahrhunderts, Leipzig. Hiersemann, 1826-30, 11v. (GLAH 1:N52).

In general, each of the TIB volumes in the illustration and commentary categories carries two numbers on the spine. The top one is its unique volume number in TIB; the bottom one represents the volumes in the original Bartsch that it illustrates or revises.

Because of inherent differences in printmakers' oeuvres, and a lack of editorial control over the series, standardization and consistency are not strong from volume to volume. Consequently, it is important in each case to read individual volume compilers' prefaces and keys to abbreviations when using TIB.

Some volumes have subject indexes. In addition, for iconographical indexing of some of the prints illustrated in TIB, using the Iconclass system, GLAH 2:F11, GLAH 2:F12, GLAH 2:F13.

- N10 Bellini, Paolo. Storia dell'incisione moderna. Con un indice bio-bibliografico di 3000 artisti incisori. Bergamo, Minerva italica, 1985. 568p. il. (part col.)

Trans. of Les grands graveurs. Paris, Art et métiers graphiques, 1978.

A monumental, though selective, oeuvre catalog of the printed works of the French Barbizon artists and others who constitute the so-called "pre-Impressionists." The scope of the catalog is intentionally more inclusive than previous treatments of the subject, in that it includes reproductive and commercial prints by or after the artists as well as "originals," and thus is more representative of the period of production. The catalog follows the numbering in Delteil (GLAH 1:N25), with the exception of Boudin, who was not included in Delteil's catalog.

Bibliography, p.25-27. Guide to the catalogues, p.256.

N78 ———. The Impressionist print. Trans. by Caroline Beamish. New Haven, Yale Univ. Pr., 1996. 296p. il. (part col.)

Trans. of L'estampe Impressioniste. Paris, Flammarion, 1994.

A comprehensive survey of the print production of artists associated with the French Impressionist movement and its immediate predecessors and successors. Melot argues that an understanding of this production is essential to an understanding of the production and reception of Impressionist art. A pendant volume to the author's Graphic art of the pre-impressionists (see preceding entry).

N172 Forrer, Matthi. Egoyomi and surinomo: their history and development. Uithoorn, Gieben, 1979. 148p. il. A useful volume on these two forms of Japanese prints often overlooked by general histories of art. Egoyomi refers to a picture calendar while surinomo are privately produced prints meant to be distributed among friends. Includes an introductory essay and chapters on egoyomi and on surinomo.

List of artists, designers, engravers, printers, and publishers of egoyomi and surimono mainly of the Ukiyo school [with Japanese characters], p.39–84. Bibliography, p.87–89.

N173 Keyes, Roger S. The art of surinomo; privately published Japanese woodblock prints and books in the Chester Beatty Library, Dublin. London, Sotheby (Distr. by Harper and Row, 1985). 2v. il. (part col.)

Surinomo encompass miniature Japanese woodblock prints used to announce or commemorate certain events as well as publications that combine a picture with verse. Dating from the 18th and 19th centuries, they were often designed by amateurs, elaborately printed on special paper, and inscribed with a poem. This 2-vol. work has a foreword by Jack Hillier, an introductory essay on the art of surinomo by Roger Keyes, and an illustrated catalog of the renowned collection at the Beatty Library, the most comprehensive collection in Europe. The catalog is presented in three sections: Ukiyo-e artists (373 items); Books and albums (28 items); and Shijō artists (115 items).

N174 Lane, Richard. Images from the floating world: the Japanese print; including an illustrated dictionary of ukiyo-e. N.Y., Putnam, [1978]. 364p. il. (part col.) (Repr.: N.Y., Chartwell, 1978; N.Y., Dorset, 1982)

British ed., Oxford, Oxford Univ. Pr., 1978; German trans., Zürich, O. Füssli, 1978; French trans., Fribourg, Office du Livre, 1979.

Ukiyo-e prints flourished during the Edo period (1600–1868) and often depicted the vibrant, plebian life of Japan. This survey of the most popular art form in Japan provides a history of the genre and includes a 150-page illustrated dictionary with biographical, geographical, technique, and terminology entries.

Contents: (I) Early genre painting and the rise of Ukiyo-e; (II) The primitives and the first century of Ukiyo-e 1660–1765; (III) The golden age of the color print 1765–1810; (IV) Hokusai, Hiroshige and the Japanese landscape 1810–1880; Illustrated dictionary of Ukiyo-e.

N175 Meech-Pekarik, Julia. The world of the Meiji print: impressions of a new civilization. [Foreword by Edward Seidensticker.] N.Y., Weatherhill, 1986. xxi, 259p. il. (part col.), plates (part folded).

A study of the Japanese woodblock prints made during the span of years from 1860–1912 when Japan opened to Western trade and influence. Bright new pigments and a more realistic style of painting and shading reflect western influence while the subjects depicted provide insight into the Japanese culture of the time. Seldom exhibited in museums and undervalued by critics who have labeled the prints "garish" and "gaudy," this book fills a gap in the literature with scholarly text and fine reproductions.

Bibliography, p.243–49.

N176 Merritt, Helen. Modern Japanese woodblock prints: the early years. Honolulu, Univ. of Hawaii Pr., [1990]. x, 324p. il.

A topically organized study of woodblock prints produced in Japan between 1904 and 1957. In addition to describing the artists and the prints, the text examines the cultural, social, and intellectual background of the prints. The author makes the point that the Japanese viewed woodblock prints as commercial reproductions, unworthy of status as art. She also explains how the publisher/artist/artisan system works with the artist painting the image, the block carver carving the image, the printer producing the colored prints, and the publisher selling the work.

O. Photography

Titles selected for inclusion in this chapter treat the subject of photography from an art historical perspective. They include bibliographies, dictionaries, directories, histories, and technical handbooks. Monographs on individual photographers are not listed, although biography is covered in the section on photographers. The arrangement is by form, chronology, and country.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

- O1 Barger, M. Susan. Bibliography of photographic processes in use before 1880: their materials, processing, and conservation. Rochester, N.Y., Graphic Arts Research Center, Rochester Institute of Technology, [1980]. 149p.

Concentrating on the pre-1880 English-language photographic journal literature, this annotated bibliography also contains references to select European, general scientific literature, and manuals of the period. Table of contents provides specific process access (e.g., "collodion, general," "wet collodion processes," "dry collodion processes," "collodion emulsion processes," "collodio-chloride printing out paper"). Citations include keywords, abstracts.

List of journals consulted, p.123. Non-English-language photographic periodicals cited, p.127. General and scientific journals cited, p.129. Author index, p.133-39. Keyword index, p.141-49.

- O2 Dixon, Penelope. Photographers of the Farm Security Administration: an annotated bibliography, 1930-1980. N.Y., Garland, 1983. 265p. plates. (Garland reference library of the humanities, 373)

Annotated access to books and articles using FSA photographs, government publications, general or government-sponsored exhibitions, films, post-FSA publications, and interviews, for twelve selected FSA photographers and Roy Stryker, plus second section on materials pertaining to two or more of this group or the FSA in general. Individual photographer's sections include brief introductory essay and cross references to other individual photographer's sections. Personal name index, p.259-65.

- O3 Flukinger, Roy. Windows of light: a bibliography of the serials literature within the Gernsheim and Photography Collections of the Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center. [Austin], Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center, Univ. of Texas at Austin, [1994]. 411p. il., facs.

Originally published as The library chronicle of the Univ. of Texas at Austin, v.24, no.3/4, 1994.

Identifies serial holdings of the original Gernsheim collection, as well as the Center's own additions, providing title access to one of the major collections of 19th- and 20th-century photographic serial literature. Brief entries list author (when appropriate), serial title, holdings, and occasionally notes, some transcribed from the Gernsheim's original notes. Numerous illustrations of covers and page spreads. In two sections, alphabetically arranged by title, "Photography retrospective serials holdings," p.39-370, "all the retrospective runs and discontinued periodicals and annuals which are no longer current"; and "Current photography serials holdings through December 1993," p.371-410, "which records all serials presently being received at the Collection."

- O4 Gernsheim, Helmut. Incunabula of British photographic literature: a bibliography of British photographic literature, 1839-75, and British books illustrated with original photographs. London, Scolar, 1984. 159p. il., facsim., ports.

Gernsheim's attempt at a catalogue raisonné contains 1,242 items. The term "original" in Part I refers to processes such as salt prints or albumen prints, etc., not permanent processes (autotype, woodburytype, etc.) or photomechanical printing processes (heliotype, etc.).

Each section is arranged chronologically, with photographs or facsimiles or illustrations of covers and title pages. Annotations often provide valuable commentary and edition information.

Contents: (I) British books illustrated with original photographs; Newspapers, periodicals and magazines illustrated with original photographs; (II) Bibliography of early British photographic literature, 1839-1875 [includes textbooks, pamphlets and distributors' catalogues]; (III) Photographic journals, almanacs and annuals; Non-photographic journals containing important source material on early photography; Important essays on photography [appearing in miscellaneous periodicals].

Some examples of the metaphorical use of the words heliography, photography and daguerreotype, p.147–48. Index to photographers, p.151–53. Index to authors and artists, p.155–59.

- O5 Goldschmidt, Lucien, and Naef, Weston J. The truthful lens: a survey of the photographically illustrated book, 1844–1914. N.Y., Grolier Club, 1980. 241p. 172 plates.

Based on an earlier exhibition of 175 photographically illustrated books, Grolier Club (1974–75). Includes a selection from that exhibition as well as additional works, presenting 192 titles with images produced either via light-sensitive metal salts (albumen prints, palladium prints, etc.) or by photo-mechanical means (heliotype, gravure, etc.). Catalog entries are annotated, in some cases extensively. Naef's essay, "From illusion to truth and back again," provides a good introduction to the topic.

Title and name index, p.231–41.

- O6 Hecht, Hermann. Pre-cinema history: an encyclopaedia and annotated bibliography of the moving image before 1896. Ed. by Ann Hecht. London, Bowker-Saur, in assoc. with the British Film Institute, 1993. xvi, 476p., plates.

With coverage of optical devices and the history of projection and visual entertainments, this title includes considerable material on early photographic process and developments in photography. Arranged chronologically from the beginning of the 16th century to 1886. Including monographs, periodical and newspaper articles, and patent specifications, the citations are extensively annotated. Material drawn from most European countries, especially Great Britain and Germany.

Personal name index, p.457–64. Subject index, p.465–76.

- O7 Heidtmann, Frank. Bibliographie der Photographie: deutschsprachige Publikationen der Jahre 1839–1984: Technik, Theorie, Bild = Bibliography of German-language photographic publications, 1839–1984: technology, theory, visual. 2. verb. und erw. Ausg. München, Saur, 1989. 2v. (Schriftenreihe der Deutschen Gesellschaft für Photographie, Bd.3) (Veröffentlichungen des Instituts für Bibliothekswissenschaft und Bibliotheksbildung der Freien Universität Berlin)

1st ed., Heidtmann, Frank; Breseman, Hans-Joachim; and Krauss, Rolf H., Die deutsche Photoliteratur, 1839–1978: Theorie, Technik, Bildleistungen: eine systematische Bibliographie der selbstständigen deutschsprachigen Photoliteratur = German photographic literature, 1839–1978: theory, technology, visual: a classified bibliography of German-language photographic publications. München, Saur, 1980. (Schriftenreihe der Deutschen Gesellschaft für Photographie, Bd.1)

"This bibliography contains all the German-language literature (monographs and serials) published in Germany, Austria, Switzerland and abroad from 1839 . . . until the end of 1984. Non-German [language] photo literature published in the German-speaking area is excluded."—Intro. 24,347 titles included are classed in five major sections that are in turn sub-classed down three to five additional levels (e.g., B. Visual; B.3. Picture books and illustrated books; B.3.24. Geographical picture books and illustrated books; B.3.24.5. Europe, several countries; B.3.24.5.5. Germany as a whole). Bilingual throughout except for citations and index. No access to individual periodical articles.

Index of personal names, classification terms, title key words, p.777–886.

- O8 ———. Wie das Photo ins Buch kam: der Weg zum photographisch illustrierten Buch anhand einer bibliographischen Skizze der frühen deutschen Publikationen mit Original-Photographien, Photolithographien, Lichtdrucken, Photogravuren, Autotypen und mit Illustrationen in weiteren photomechanischen Reproduktionsverfahren. Berlin, Berlin Verlag A. Spitz, 1984. 817p., [2], il., mounted col. port., mounted plates. (Schriftenreihe der Deutschen Gesellschaft für Photographie, Bd. 2)

Essential source for study of early photographically illustrated books in German-speaking lands. Means of image reproduction includes both photo-mechanical (gravure, etc.) and prints produced via light-sensitive materials (albumen, etc.). Sections include extensive bibliography. Lacks cumulative index.

Selective contents: (2) Publikationen mit Photographien; (2.1) Skizze der Entwicklung, Annotationen; (2.2) Publikationen mit Photographien. Bibliographie; (2.3) Register für die Publikationen mit Photographien; (2.4) Photographien-Serien; (2.5) Publikationen mit Nicht-Silber-Kopierverfahren - Pigmentdruck [etc.]; (2.6) Publikationen mit Illustrationen nach Photographien; (2.7) Buch- und Publikationswesen im 19. Jahrhundert. (3) Die Photomechanischen Druckverfahren und ihre frühen Abbildungsleistungen; (3.1) Das Ätzen von Daguerreotypen; (3.2) Reliefabformungen. Sackgassen auf dem Wege zu ökonomischen photomechanischen Verfahren; (3.3) Flachdruckverfahren- Photolithographie [etc.]; (3.4) Photomechanische Farbdruckverfahren; (3.5) Hochdruckverfahren - Photozinkotypie [etc.]; (3.6) Tiefdruckverfahren - Heliographie [etc.]; (3.7) Raster-Kupfertiefdruck.

Bibliography of early German monographs and periodical titles on technical aspects of photographic reproduction, p.732–59. Publications after 1915, p.760–89. General bibliography, p.790–817. Four mounted plates (Rasterheliogravure, Autotypie, Photographie, and Lichtdruck).

- O9 International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House, Rochester, N.Y. Library catalog of the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House. Boston, Hall, 1982. 4v.

Catalog of the monographic holdings of the Museum's library, numbering more than 11,000 volumes at the date of the catalog's publication. In two sections, an author/title catalog (v.1–2) and a subject catalog (v.3–4).

- O10 International photography index. Ed. by William S. Johnson. Boston, Hall, 1983–1984.

Continues: An Index to articles on photography. Rochester, N.Y., Visual Studies workshop, 1978–80, which covered the years 1977–78. Covers 1979–81.

With 1978, increases from 63 to 98 number of periodicals indexed. Author and Subject index refers back to subject heading section, since citations are not numbered. Subject headings include: By artist, By artist (group portfolio) . . . , By city or country . . . , collection, etc.

- O11 Johnson, William. Nineteenth-century photography: an annotated bibliography, 1839–1879. Boston, Hall, 1990. 962p. [1] port.

Focuses less on technical and equipment literature than on photography as "a history of individuals engaged with a specific medium to communicate or persuade or express their understandings and feelings about their world."—Introd.

Selected bibliography of 19th-century literature in English. Contains "nearly twenty-one thousand references to books and periodical articles published from 1839 to the present about photography from 1839 to 1879." Drawn from a broad range of general interest as well as specialist photographic journals, books, manuals, and pamphlets. In two sections that do not duplicate citations, "References by Artist or Author" (lists citations by photographer when work cited is about a photographer) and "Special Topics," which lacks necessary specificity for good subject access: "Bibliography," "Prehistory," "History," "[History] By Country," "By Apparatus or Equipment," "By Application or Usage." Not all items annotated.

List of periodicals indexed, p.xii–xv. Index to authors, p.943–62 (for citations listed by photographer in "References by Artist or Author" section).

"While publications in the U.K., Belgium, Germany, France, the United States and Russia have been treated extensively, publications of other countries such as those of Southeastern Europe, Spain, Portugal, and Latin America are represented in small numbers due to the lack of information hitherto obtainable."—Foreword.

Alphabetical title listing of more than 2,000 international periodicals with information on language, country of origin, publication dates, frequency, holding libraries (international), and sources consulted. Annotations are trilingual when included.

Periodicals indexed by country of origin, p.363–68. Personal and corporate name index, p.369–86. Sources consulted, p.387–90. Holding library symbols, p.391–406. "Select list of abbreviations used" issued as loose suppl.

- O13 Lambrechts, Eric, and Salu, Luc. Photography and literature: an international bibliography of monographs. [N.Y.], Mansell, [1992]. 296p.

Provides access to "some 3,900 titles in about twenty languages" from 1839 to 1991. Works either combine verse/prose and photographs, are photographic works produced by writers or anthologies on photography by writers, explore relationships between photography and literature or artistic movements encompassing both, or contain photographs of writers or places memorable in fiction. Arranged in single alphabetical photographer/author index, with cross-references to editors, compilers, illustrators, etc.

Subject index, p.287–96.

- O14 New York Public Library. Research Libraries. Photographica: a subject catalog of books on photography: includes books, pamphlets, and selected periodical articles on still photography and allied topics: drawn from the holdings of the Research Libraries of the New York Public Libraries, Astor, Lenox, and Tilden Foundations. Boston, Hall, 1984. 380p.

"Presents a unified subject bibliography of literature in books and periodicals on still photography and allied topics selected from card catalogs of The Research Libraries through December 1971 . . . no references will be found under personal or corporate names nor under titles or place names of any sort . . . nearly 8,000 entries are arranged alphabetically under approximately 120 subject headings."—Pref.

Chronological arrangement of 3,271 periodical citations with brief annotations from English-language sources. Absence of extensive subject index limits utility.

Selected bibliography: books and articles relating to women in photography globally, p.273–87. Index of women photographers, authors, p.289–321. Topical index, p.321–25. Index of male photographers, authors, p.325–32.

- O16 Photographers: a sourcebook for historical research. Richard Rudisill . . . [et al.] [Ed. by Peter E. Palmquist.] Brownsville, Calif., Carl Mautz, 1991. 103p. il.

Combines a selection of six essays on "The experience of regional directory research" with Richard Rudisill's "Directories of photographers: an annotated world bibliography," p.[52]–101. Rudisill's annotated bibliography is truly international, providing access to a wide range of general, national, regional, and area-specific histories, directories, and bibliographies, and contains a section of "Works in progress" that includes the compiler's address.

Index of authors, p.99–101.

- O17 Program for Art on Film, Direction des musées de France. Films and videos on photography. [N.Y., The Program, 1990]. 114p.

Contains 511 annotated entries, arranged alphabetically by title, from the Art on Film database of the Program for Art on Film. The Program is now affiliated with the Pratt Institute's School of Information and Library Science, Brooklyn, New York. Access to current database is through Pratt.

Subject index, p.85-95. Names index, p.97-103. Source index, p.105-14.

- O18 Roosens, Laurent, and Salu, Luc. History of photography: a bibliography of books. London, N.Y., Mansell, [1989- ]. (4)v.

Critically selective, yet broadly conceived, compilation of 25,902 entries drawn from books, exhibition catalogs, dissertations, essays, brochures, offprints, and trade literature on photography and related areas (silhouettes, optics, holography, etc.). Arranged in a single alphabetical index combining name with subject access (eg., bromoil printing process, kite photography, snapshots).

V.1 (1989) covers photographers born before 1914, v.2 (1994) photographers born before 1936, v.3 (1996) photographers born before 1950, and v.4 (1999) photographers born before 1962. Each vol. updates the coverage of the preceding ones. Headings are consistent from vol. to vol. with cumulative references for each entry.

- O19 Sennett, Robert S. The nineteenth-century photographic press: a study guide. N.Y., Garland, 1987. 97p. (Garland reference library of the humanities, 6) Handbook. Alphabetical list of 88 international journals published between 1840-1899 with selected citations from some titles and notes by the author. No attempt at comprehensiveness in either listing or indexing.

- O20 ———. Photography and photographers to 1900: an annotated bibliography. N.Y., Garland, 1985. 134p. (Garland reference library of the humanities, 594)

Selective monographic bibliography with brief annotations of 19th- and 20th-century literature on photographers and processes active before 1900. A handbook, not an attempt at comprehensive coverage.

Contents: General works; Early technical treatises; Early theoretical treatises; Monographs on photographers; Early views and topographic surveys.

Combined name and subject index, p.117-34.

- O21 Wallis, Frank H. Photography of the nude: an annotated bibliography. Monroe, Conn., Source Publications, 1993. 168p.

"The focus is on photography of the nude, and not commentary on the nude. . . . Scholarly essays on photography of the nude are not included unless they contain visuals."—Pref. Photographs must have been published in order to be included.

Although the first section, arranged alphabetically by photographer, is far from comprehensive, and the later sections add little in terms of research value, this guide to published nude photographs serves as a useful initial research tool.

Contents: (I) Monographs, anthologies, and individual works; (II) The photographer's model; (III) Related articles; (IV) Reference works.

Glossary, p.151-52. Photographers in anthologies index, p.153-61. Model index, p.161-62. Special techniques, p.163-64. Subject areas, p.165-68.

DIRECTORIES

- O22 Craig, John S. Craig's daguerreian registry. Comp. and ed. by John S. Craig. Torrington, Conn., Craig, 1994-1996. 3v.

Drawn primarily from U.S. city business directories, this directory aims to be the acknowledged reference guide to U.S. photographers and allied workers for the period 1839-1860.

V.1 (1994) provides name, location, occupation (daguerreotype, ambrotype, dealer, manufacturer, etc.), sex and race if known, and known dates, in table format for approximately 9,000 individuals. Data is presented alphabetically and then repeated in a geographical (state/city) listing. A third listing gives source notes alphabetically by photographer. V.2 and v.3 (1996) provide expanded information in paragraph format. V.3 contains an index by state only and a listing of sources.

Contents: (1) The overview; (2) Pioneers and progress, Abbott to Lytle; (3) Pioneers and progress, MacDonald to Zuky.

Bibliographic apparatus and indexes in each vol.

- O23 European photography guide 6. Ed. by Peter Badge and Vladimir Birgus. [6th ed.] [Göttingen], European Photography [Distr. Distributed Art Publishers, 1997]. 249p.

1st ed., European photo galleries guide, [ed. by Harald Besler], 1982.

Contents arranged by 31 individual countries, with the following sections where appropriate: Galleries and museums; Festivals and fairs; Magazines; Book publishers; Critics and journalists; Schools and workshops; Associations; Grants and awards; Video art.

Index by each of the above categories, p.227-49.

DICTIONARIES AND ENCYCLOPEDIAS

O34 Auer, Michèle, and Auer, Michel. Photographers encyclopaedia International [computer file.] Neuchâtel, Ides et Calendes, 1997. 1 computer disk, 1 booklet.

Considerably expanded version of Encyclopedie internationale des photographes de 1839 à nos jours = Photographers encyclopaedia international 1839 to the present. Hermance, Switzerland, Editions Camera Obscura, 1985; repr., 1990.

Data bank of photographers and other related artists and professionals, with a chronology of the history of photography, a lexicon of processes, biographies, exhibition lists, bibliographies and addresses for 3,135 people, less complete information for 3,000 others, and more than 5,900 images dating from the beginnings of photography. The database may be searched by a variety of selection criteria. May be run with either French or English interface. Guide booklet in French and English.

- O35 Baldwin, Gordon. Looking at photographs: a guide to technical terms. [Malibu], Getty Museum, in assoc. with the British Museum Pr., [1991]. 88p. il. (part col.)

"As this book is intended for someone actually looking at photographs, the list of terms had been limited to those likely to appear on descriptive labels in exhibitions or in catalogue entries."—Foreword. Clear and concise definitions of technical, process, genre, and format terms, often illustrated, published in handbook format.

Selected technical and historical bibliography, p.87.

- O36 Browne, Turner, and Partnow, Elaine. Macmillan biographical encyclopedia of photographic artists and innovators. N.Y., Macmillan, [1983]. 722p. 144 plates (part col.)

Besides basic biographical information on more than 2,000 photographers, each entry includes listings of publications, portfolios, collections, dealer or representative, and address. Produced through a combination of respondent questionnaires, informal advisors, and the efforts of the authors. "Dedication" and "visibility" were the two major criteria for inclusion (Pref.).

Museums, p.702. Photographic galleries, p.703–21.

- O37 Contemporary photographers. Executive ed., Martin Marix Evans. Consultant ed., Amanda Hopkinson. Advisers, Andrey Baskakov . . . [et al.] 3d ed. N.Y., St. James Press, [1995]. 1234p. il. (Contemporary arts series)

"The addition of over 140 new entrants has necessitated the omission of many photographers listed in the previous edition. In order to maintain the contemporary relevance of the work, those entrants who died before 1 January 1975, those whom we are advised have not added significantly to their corpus of work since 1987 or whose achievements are not known to us have been excluded."—Ed. note. Each entry includes biography, individual exhibitions, selected group exhibitions, selected collections, bibliography of books and articles by and about the photographer, critical essay, and some entries include a statement by the photographer.

Nationality index, p.[1211]–19. Notes on advisers and contributors, p.[1221]–34.

- O38 The Focal encyclopedia of photography. Ed. by Leslie Stroebe and Richard Zakia. 3d ed. Boston, Focal Pr., [1993]. 914p. il.

See GLAH 1:08 for previous eds.

"This third edition updates material from the previous edition that is still relevant and includes numerous new topics related to changes and advances made in the broad field of photography during the intervening years."—Pref. Especially useful for technical definitions; biographical and historical entries are fairly brief. Twenty-four appendixes present additional technical information: conversion scales, film and paper reciprocity date, etc.

- O39 Gilbert, George. The illustrated worldwide who's who of Jews in photography. N.Y., Gilbert, [1996]. 333p. il.

Brief biographies are organized by chapters based on chronological or topical divisions. Illustrations are only of photocopy quality.

Contents: (I) Nineteenth century photography by Jews; (II) Photojournalism; (III) News photography and the communication arts; (IV) Photography in the Holy Land - British Mandate - Israel; (V) In the studios and galleries; (VI) Jewish women in photography; (VII) Nobel Prize winners; (VIII) Associations established by Jewish photographers; (IX) Documenters of the Jewish culture; (X) Intellectualization of photography; (XI) Hitler and the American camera store.

Footnotes, p.311–13. Jews in photography, by Nachum T. Gidal, p.315–17. Bibliography, p.319–20. Jewish Pulitzer Prize winners, p.321–22. Names that changed, p.323–24. Index, p.327–33.

- O40 International Center of Photography encyclopedia of photography. N.Y., Crown, [1984]. 607p. il., plates (part col.)

Comprehensive yet clearly written entries with see also references help to make even the most technical issues understandable. Good combination of historical, biographical, and technical coverage.

Biographical supplement of photographers, p.[576]–93. Photographic societies and associations, p.[594]–97. Bibliography, p.[600]–07.

- O41 Mautz, Carl. Biographies of western photographers: a reference guide to photographers working in the 19th century American West. [Nevada City, Calif.], Mautz, 1997. 601p. il.

A significant expansion of the previously published Checklist of Western photographers, 3d ed., Brownsville, Calif., Folk Image Pub., 1986.

Combines in one vol. the efforts of several compilers of data on photographers in 27 Western states and Canada. Data varies from brief dates only to much fuller descriptions including names of businesses operated, addresses, and additional data gained from photographers' imprints and related research.

Selective contents: Photographers' imprints and information on antique photographs, by William C. Darrah; Dating early photographs by format and mount information, by Jeremy Rowe.

Index of photographers, p.527–93. Bibliography, p.595–99. Glossary, p.601.

- O42 Nadeau, Luis. Encyclopedia of printing, photographic, and photomechanical processes: a comprehensive reference to reproduction technologies, containing invaluable information on over 1500 processes. [Fredericton, N.B., Canada, Nadeau, 1989–1990]. 2v. il.

Provides cross-referenced access to a wealth of historical and contemporary reproduction processes. Entries include relevant German term, brief discussion, footnotes, and bibliography. Footnotes of principle reproductive process entries usually cite where a specimen may be found.

Each vol. contains subject and name indexes, as well as a glossary of German terms. Only the v.2 subject index and German glossary cover both vols. List of principal reproductive processes, v.2, p.493–95. Glossary of common technical terms and abbreviations, v.2, p.497–500.

- O43 Willis-Thomas, Deborah. Black photographers, 1840–1940: an illustrated bio-bibliography. N.Y., Garland, 1985. 141p. plates. (Garland reference library of the humanities, 401)

A selection of 65 "outstanding figures" arranged alphabetically in 4 chronological groupings, not an attempt at comprehensiveness. Entries vary from brief activity dates and location with reference citations to more extensive listings with biographical notes, principal subjects, bibliography, collections, etc. Numerous plates.

Glossary of photographic processes, p.xv–xviii. Bibliography, p.23–24. Plates, p.[27]–[136.] Name index, p.137. Geographical index, p.139–40. Index to photographic collections, p.141.

- O44 ———. An illustrated bio-bibliography of Black photographers, 1940–1988. N.Y., Garland, 1989. 483p. plates. (Garland reference library of the humanities, 760)

Similar in format to preceding title. A selective alphabetical listing of major figures from the period, with entries ranging from brief activity dates and locations to more extensive listings with biographical notes, exhibition and collections listings, and bibliographies.

Plates, p.163–469. Bibliography, 475–78. Selected exhibitions 1969–1987, p.479–83.

PHOTOGRAPHERS

- O45 Danziger, James, and Conrad, Barnaby. Interviews with master photographers. N.Y., Paddington Press. [Distr. by Grosset and Dunlap, 1977]. 175p., plates, ports.

Interviews with 8 major figures in photography, including Minor White, Cornell Capa, Yosuf Karsh, and Arnold Newman. Lacks index.

- O46 Dialogue with photography. [By] Paul Hill and Thomas Cooper. Manchester, Cornerhouse Publications, 1994. 339, [9]p. ports.

First published N.Y., Farrar, Straus, and Giroux, 1979.

"The interviews in this book originally appeared in Camera magazine, Lucerne, Switzerland and were developed with the editorial counsel of Allan Porter." An essential collection of comprehensive interviews with 22 seminal figures. Index, p.339–[48].

- O47 Dugan, Thomas. Photography between covers: interviews with photo-bookmakers. Rochester, N.Y., Light Impressions, 1979. 220p., ports.

Fifteen interviews with contemporary photographers who contributed significantly to the development of the contemporary photographic picture book, including Nathan Lyons, Larry Clark, Duane Michals, and Bea Nettles. Lacks index.

- O48 Edwards, Gary. International guide to nineteenth-century photographers and their works: based on catalogues of auction houses and dealers. Boston, Hall, 1988. 591p.

Good source for providing name confirmation of more than 5,000 19th-century photographers. Indicates if photographer's work was listed or illustrated in the more than 300 sales and dealer catalogs surveyed, most of which date from the 1970s and 1980s. Brief biographical and photographic practice information. Does not include prices.

- O49 International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House, Rochester, New York. Masterpieces of photography: from the George Eastman House collections. By Robert A. Sobieszek. N.Y., Abbeville Pr., 1985. 466p. il., plates (part col.)

Arranged in four thematic and chronological sections, 200 works from the Museum's holdings present a pictorial overview of the medium. Each image is reproduced as a full-page plate and accompanied by a page of commentary, often with an additional illustration. Provides not only an introduction to the individual photographer but also to the photographer's context.

Bibliographic notes, p.422–40. Catalog of photographers, p.441–57. Index, p.459–66.

- O50 Master photographers: the world's great photographers on their art and technique. Ed. by Pat Booth. London, Macmillan, [1983]. 200p. il.

16 interviews, mostly devoted to technical aspects of the photographers' work or to discussions of specific images.

Bibliography, p.197–98. Index, p.199–200.

- O51 The photography book. [London, Phaidon, 1997]. 512p. chiefly il. (part col.)

Large-format publication provides a pictorial survey of the history of photography with works by 500 photographers. Each plate is accompanied by a very brief analysis written by Ian Jeffrey of that photographer's or photograph's significance.

Glossary of techniques and terms, p.504–06. Glossary of movements, groups, and genres, p.507–08. Directory of museums and galleries, p.509–10.

- O52 Photography speaks: 66 photographers on their art. [Ed. by] Brooks Johnson. N.Y., Aperture, 1989. 141p., plates (part col.)

Briefly surveys 66 19th- and 20th-century photographers. Combines brief biographical commentary with a full-page plate and an excerpt by each photographer, some written specifically for this book. Works chosen from the Alice and Sol B. Frank Collection.

Bibliography, p.139–40. Index of photographers, p.141.

- O53 Photography speaks II: from The Chrysler Museum collection: 70 photographers on their art. [Ed. by] Brooks Johnson. N.Y., Aperture; Norfolk, Chrysler Museum, 1995. 149p., plates (part col.)

Repeats format and expands coverage of Photography speaks (see preceding title). Works were chosen from the Chrysler Museum collection to complement the earlier vol.

Bibliography, p.147–48. Index of photographers, p.149.

- O54 Visions and images: American photographers on photography. [By] Barbaralee Diamonstein. N.Y., Rizzoli, 1982. 191p. il.

Based on a series of interviews held at the New School for Social Research/Parsons School of Design. Interviews with 15 major photographers, including Horst P. Horst, Barbara Morgan, Frederick Sommer, and Garry Winogrand.

- O55 Witkin, Lee D., and London, Barbara. The photograph collector's guide. Boston, N.Y. Graphic Society, 1979. 438p. il., 8 col. plates, ports.

Written with the collector in mind. Contains biographical profiles with sample signatures, information on photographic practices, and selected bibliography for 234 photographers. A separate listing provides names, dates, and locations for 1,000 daguerreotypists, and an additional listing gives names, dates, and locations for 6,000 additional 19th- and 20th-century photographers. Separate chapters are provided on collecting, care and restoration, and limited-edition portfolios (listed by photographer with contents described).

Photography chronology, p.[14]–27. Collector's glossary, p.[28]–45. Museums, galleries, auction houses, exhibition spaces, p.[389]–418. Bibliography, p.[419]–25. Index, p.427–38.

- O56 World photographers reference series. Anne Hammond and Amy Rule, series eds. Robert G. Neville, exec. ed. Boston, Hall, 1992–95. 9v.

Outstanding series on major photographic figures. Each vol. is illustrated, contains selected essays and criticism, extensive bibliography, and chronology.

Contents: (1) Anne Hammond, ed. Frederick H. Evans (1992); (2) Amy Rule, ed. Imogen Cunningham (1992); (3) Mike Weaver, ed. Henry Fox Talbot (1992); (4) Amy Rule, ed. Carleton Watkins (1993); (5) Nigel Warburton, ed. Bill Brandt (1993); (6) William Buchanan, ed. J. Craig Annan (1994); (7) Sheryl Conkelton, ed. Frederick Sommer (1995); (8) Verna Posever Curtis and Jane Van Nimmen, eds. F. Holland Day (1995); (9) Ronald Gedrim, ed. Edward Steichen (1995).

TECHNIQUES

- O57 Coe, Brian. Cameras: from daguerreotypes to instant pictures. N.Y., Crown Publishers, 1978. 232p. il., plates.

Provides thorough coverage of the development of the camera, with numerous illustrations and schematics. Chapters arranged by camera types, with additional chapters on lenses, shutters, exposure meters, and flash equipment.

Index, p.[233]–[40].

- O58 ———, and Haworth-Booth, Mark. A guide to early photographic processes. [London], Victoria and Albert Museum, Hurtwood Pr., [1983]. 112p. il., 37 plates (part col.)

Useful for identifying photographic process types. The plates, which are accompanied by technical and descriptive commentary, are of suitable quality to convey reasonable sense of photographic processes.

Key to the identification of processes [flow chart], p.13–16. Illustrated glossary, p.17–28. Span of formats and processes [1840–1920 timeline], p.29. Selected bibliography, p.111–12.

- O59 Coote, Jack H. The illustrated history of colour photography. [Surbiton, Surrey, England], Fountain Press, [1993]. 248p. il., plates (part col.)

Comprehensive explanations of the technological history of color photography, with numerous illustrations and schematics of equipment and techniques. Includes very brief explanation of digital imaging. Emphasis on developments in Great Britain.

Chronology, p.234–35. Bibliography, p.236–37. Literature and patent references, p.238–43. Index, p.244–47.

- O60 Crawford, William. The keepers of light: a history and working guide to early photographic processes. Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., Morgan and Morgan, [1979]. 318p. il., plates (part col.)

Still a primary source for its joining of considerable technical data with the cultural properties of photography into a "syntax," following the model of William M. Ivins, Prints and visual communication (see GLAH 1:N35). This photographic syntax is presented along with a history of early processes in part I. Part II provides technical details on how these processes are performed.

Recommended reading, p.[307]–10. Sources of supply, p.[311]–14. Index, p.[315]–17.

- O61 Farbe im Photo: die Geschichte der Farbphotographie von 1861 bis 1981. [Köln, Josef-Haubrich-Kunsthalle, 1981]. 304p. il. (part col.)

Catalog of the exhibition, Josef-Haubrich-Kunsthalle Köln (1981). Good examination of the development of color processes although German developments and illustrative material are emphasized. Chronologically divided into three areas of discussion: Pionierzeit (before 1900); Spezialistenzeit (1900–1936); Popularisierungszeit (after 1936). With 12 essays by Fritz Binder, Gert Koshofer, Rolf Sachsse, Klaus op ten Hötel, and Walter Boje.

Wichtige Daten aus der Geschichte der Farbphotographie, by Gert Koshofer, p.270–76. Glossar, by Gert Koshofer, p.277–81. Photographenbiographie, p.281–83. Verzeichnis der ausgestellten Objekte, p.284–302. Die Verfahren der Farbphotographie, by Gert Koshofer [endpapers].

- O62 Lothrop, Eaton S. A century of cameras from the collection of the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House. Rev. and exp. ed. Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., Morgan and Morgan, [1982]. 186p. il., 1 price guide.

See GLAH 1:O35 for 1st ed. and original annotation.

With an additional 21 cameras included, a total of 151 cameras are presented.

- O63 Mitchell, William J. The reconfigured eye: visual truth in the post-photographic era. Cambridge, Mass., MIT Pr., 1992. 273p. il. (part col.)

Provides a detailed assessment of digital image manipulation techniques and their implications for the reportorial function of photography.

Contents: (1) Beginnings; (2) The nascent medium; (3) Intention and artifice; (4) Electronic tools; (5) Digital brush strokes; (6) Virtual cameras; (7) Synthetic shading; (8) Computer collage; (9) How to do things with pictures; (10) The shadows on the wall.

Notes, p.[227]–[54]. Selected readings, p.[255]–[68]. Index, p.[269]–73.

- O64 Nadeau, Luis. History and practice of carbon processes. Trans. . . . by the author. [Fredericton, N.B., Canada, Nadeau, 1982]. 199p. il.

Presents history of carbon processes based on the discoveries of Alphonse Poitevin, including carbonyl, autotype, fresson, etc. While this vol. provides procedures for the contemporary application of carbon processes, it was later revised and published as two separate titles that significantly expanded this aspect, but with the loss of some of the historical data: Modern carbon printing: a practical guide to the ultimate in permanent photographic printing, monochrome carbon transfer and carbonyl, [2d ed.], [Fredericton, N.B., Canada, Nadeau, 1992]; Gum dichromate and other direct carbon processes, from Artigue to Zimmerman. [Fredericton, N.B., Canada, Nadeau, 1987.]

- O65 ———. History and practice of oil and bromoil printing. [Fredericton, N.B., Nadeau, 1985]. 94p. il.

Although geared to the practitioner, the brief technical history and step-by-step explanations of the various processes and the equipment and chemicals required will be of interest to those researching non-silver processes. Handling of chemicals, conservation, restoration, and related issues are also discussed.

Bibliography, p.85–91. Index, p.93–94.

- O66 ———. History and practice of platinum printing. 3d rev. ed. [Fredericton, N.B., Canada, Nadeau, 1994]. 192p. il.

Tipped-in specimen of a platinum/palladium print by Robert J. Steinberg.

Provides technological history of platinum process and thorough explanations of historical and contemporary approaches to platinum printing, from materials and equipment required to conservation of prints and handling and disposal of materials.

Chronology of platinum printing, p.141–42. Glossary, by William E. Briggs, p.159–67. Bibliography, sources, and suppliers, p.175–86. Index, p.187–92.

- O67 Reilly, James M. Care and identification of 19th-century photographic prints. [Rochester, Eastman Kodak Company, 1986]. 116p. il. (part col.) (Kodak publication, no.G-2S)

Although intended as a preservation and restoration guide, this publication provides excellent explanations of early photographic and photo-mechanical processes. Specific instructions for identifying processes are aided by numerous enlarged details.

"Flowchart for identification guide" (1 folded leaf) inserted. Endnotes, p.111–13. Bibliography, p.114–15. Index, p.116.

- O68 Wood, John. The art of the autochrome: the birth of color photography. Iowa City, Univ. of Iowa Pr., [1993]. 185p., 75 col. plates.

Discusses the autochrome era (1904–1920s) in the context of the various Secessionist movements, Symbolism, and societal inclinations. Extensive plate notes.

Bibliographic notes, p.[59]–68. Notes to the plates, p.[147]–64. Bibliography, p.[165]–85.

HISTORIES AND HANDBOOKS

General Works

- O69 Ades, Dawn. Photomontage. Rev. and enl. ed. [London], Thames and Hudson, [1986]. 176p. 203 il. (World of art)

See GLAH 1:O57 for 1st ed.

With 32 additional illustrations, a revised text, and bibliography. Continues emphasis on photomontage of 1920s–30s.

Notes, p.162–64. Bibliography, p.172. Index, p.173–76.

- O70 Anthropology and photography 1860–1920. Ed. by Elizabeth Edwards. New Haven, Yale Univ. Pr., 1992. 275p. 153 il.

Collection of five introductory essays on historical and theoretical perspectives (e.g., Photography: theories of realism and convention, by Terence Wright; The parallel histories of anthropology and photography, by Christopher Pinney), 20 case-study essays (e.g., Science visualized: E. H. Man in the Andaman Islands, by Elizabeth Edwards; Photography, power, and the Southern Nuba, by James C. Faris), and two concluding essays (e.g., A political primer on anthropology/photography, by James C. Faris).

Photographic techniques: an outline, p.264–67. Index, p.268–75.

- O71 The art of photography, 1839–1989. Ed. by Mike Weaver. Photographs selected by Daniel Wolf with Mike Weaver and Norman Rosenthal. New Haven, Yale Univ. Pr., [1989]. 472p. 16 il., 462 plates (part col.)

Catalog of the exhibition, Museum of Fine Arts, Houston (1989), and other locations, celebrating photography's sesquicentennial. Not an attempt to produce a comprehensive history, but rather a roughly chronological grouping of 15 essential topics (e.g., "Early French masters," "Travel," "Pictorial effect," "Construction and appropriation"). Each section preceded by a brief essay (Robert Sobieszek, Peter Bunnell, Anne Tucker, et al.) and an excerpt from a text related to that pictorial grouping (Julia Margaret Cameron, Victor Burgin, et al.). Instead of one photograph each by a wide range of photographers, each grouping contains several works by a select number of photographers (88 photographers in all). All photographs from the exhibition are reproduced.

Chronology, p.4–6. Glossary, p.448–49. Biographies and checklist, p.450–71. Bibliography, p.472.

- O72 Brothers, Caroline. War and photography: a cultural history. London, Routledge, [1996]. 277p. 29 il.

Using the Spanish Civil War as a case study, the text "seeks an understanding not of Spain but of the mind-set of 1930s Britain and France as it was expressed in the most public of images—in the news photographs of their daily and weekly press."—Pref.

Contents: (1) Photography, theory, history; (2) The Republican militiamen; (3) Insurgent soldiers and Moors; (4) Women-at-arms; (5) Semiology and the city at war; (6) The anthropology of civilian life; (7) Refugees and the limitations of documentary; (8) Casualties and the nature of photographic evidence; (9) If not about Spain . . . 1930s Britain and France; (10) Vietnam, the Falklands, the Gulf: photography in the age of the simulacral.

Notes, p.218–48. Bibliography, p.249–68. Index, p.269–77.

- O73 The Camera at war: a history of war photography from 1848 to the present day. [Compiled by] Jorge Lewinski. N.Y., Simon and Schuster, [1978]. 240p. il., plates. (Repr.: N.Y., Simon and Schuster, 1980; London, Octopus, 1986).

Discusses war photography within context of political events, with accompanying analysis of how war photographs are taken, presented, and interpreted.

Contents: (1) Distant witness, 1848–1912; (2) Dispassionate observer, First World War–Spanish Civil War; (3) Enlisted combatant, Second World War; (4) Intimate companion, Korea–Northern Ireland; (5) Intense explorer, Vietnam; (Postscript) Civilians, children and women.

Bibliography, p.236–37. Index, p.238–40.

- O74 Chevrier, Jean-François. Photo-Kunst: Arbeiten aus 150 Jahren: du XXème au XIXème siècle, aller et retour. Katalogtexte = textes, Ursula Zeller. Ulrike Gauss, Hrsg. = ed. [Stuttgart, Cantz, 1989]. 413p. 185 plates (part col.)

Text in German and French. Catalog for the sesquicentennial exhibition, Graphische Sammlung Staatsgalerie Stuttgart (1989). Provides interesting counterpoint to the U.S./U.K.-based sesquicentennial catalogs, Art of photography, 1839–1989 (GLAH 2:O71), On the art of fixing a shadow (GLAH 2:O92), Photography until now (GLAH 2:O99), with much greater emphasis on contemporary photographers. Extensive catalog texts with multiple works by contemporary figures.

Contents: Die Abenteuer der Tableau-Form in der Geschichte der Photographie = Les aventures de la forme tableau dans l'histoire de la photographie, by Jean-François Chevrier; (I) Coplans, Henson, Horsfield, Lafont, Wall; (II) 19. Jahrhundert und klassische Moderne = XIXème siècle et première moitié du XXème siècle; (III) 60er und 70er Jahre = Les années 60 et 70; (IV) Düsseldorf - Struth, Ruff, Gursky; Vancouver - Wallace, Lum, Douglas, Arden; Paris - Tosani, Milovanoff, Garnell, Faigenbaum.

- O75 Coe, Brian, and Gates, Paul. The snapshot photograph: the rise of popular photography, 1888–1939. [London], Ash and Grant, [1977]. 144p. il., plates.

Illustrations drawn primarily from the Kodak Museum, London. Emphasis on snapshot photography in England to mid-1930s. Good coverage of technical issues, camera types, but lacking extensive analysis of the impact of photography on popular culture.

Glossary, p.136–37. Roll film sizes, p.138–39. Index, p.140–44. Bibliography, p.144.

- O76 The contest of meaning: critical histories of photography. Ed. by Richard Bolton. Cambridge, MIT Pr., [1989]. 407p. il.

Postmodern criticism has campaigned for multiple "histories" vs. a "history" of photography. Monographic "history" volumes are increasingly being supplemented by edited collections of essays that question traditional assumptions and methods. Bolton's collection contains work by 14 pre-eminent contemporary critics, including Douglas Crimp, Abigail Solomon-Godeau, Carol Squiers, and Allan Sekula.

Index, p.392–406.

- O77 Daval, Jean Luc. Photography, history of an art. [Trans. by R. F. M. Dexter.] N.Y., Skira/Rizzoli, [1982]. 269p. il. (part col.)

Trans. of Histoire d'un art, la photographie. Genève, Skira, 1982.

Instead of the usual chronologically arranged, technology related history, Daval links developments in photography to the socio-cultural milieu, with a special emphasis on related occurrences in the visual arts. Comprised of topical vignettes (e.g., "Photography for all," "The family album," "From ethnography to sociology") within larger chapters (e.g., "The popularizing of photography"). Emphasizes European photographers.

List of illustrations by artist's name, p.255–63. Index, p.265–69.

"The book advances two ideas. First, alternative manners of depicting buildings were apparent from the earliest days of photography and continue to this day; one formula stresses the factual component of pictures, and the other, their emotional content, both expressive devices. Second, photographers consciously capitalized on the significant interrelationship between any pair of subjects isolated in a picture in order to make critical statements."—Introd.

In four chronologically continuous chapters the authors present an interpretive survey, incorporating trends in photography, architecture, journalism, and photo-mechanical reproduction.

1st ed. 1984; rev. ed. 1989.

Broadest coverage currently available for pre-1839 to early-1990s. Extent of coverage does not allow thorough contextual development of specific topics or photographers. Provides more focused examination in three short technical histories ("Pre-photographic optical and chemical observations and early experiments in photography," "Materials, equipment, and processes," "Developments since 1910") and six primarily illustrated sections ("The Galerie Contemporaine—appearance and character in 19th-century portraiture," "The Western landscape—natural and fabricated," "A 19th-century forerunner of photojournalism—the execution of the Lincoln conspirators," "The origins of color in camera images," "Illuminating injustices: the camera and social issues," "The machine: icons of the industrial ethos"). Western/Eurocentric in photographers covered.

- O99 Szarkowski, John. Photography until now. N.Y., Museum of Modern Art. (Distr. by Bulfinch, [1989]). 343p. il., plates (part col.)

Catalog of the exhibition celebrating photography's sesquicentennial, Museum of Modern Art (1989), and other locations. Attempts to "sketch out a history of photographic pictures, organized according to patterns of technological change," where, besides the mechanical, optical, and chemical, technology is defined as also incorporating "methods of distribution of photographic imagery, economic restraints, and professional status."—Introd.

Contents: (1) Before photography; (2) The inventors; (3) The daguerreotype and the calotype; (4) Paper versus glass; (5) George Eastman and Alfred Stieglitz; (6) Photographs in ink; (7) After the magazines.

Bibliographic notes, p.298–311. Checklist, p.313–33. Name index, p.338–42.

- O100 Tausk, Petr. A short history of press photography. Prague, International Organisation of Journalists, 1988. 232p. 206 plates (part col.)

Integration of economic, social, and technical information results in a reasonably good international survey of photojournalism.

Bibliography, p.226–30.

- O101 Westerbeck, Colin, and Meyerowitz, Joel. Bystander: a history of street photography. Boston, Little, Brown, [1994]. 430p. il., plates (part col.)

Emphasis on intentional observation vs. casual snapshot. "The combination of this instrument, a camera, and this subject, the street, yields a type of picture that is idiosyncratic to photography in a way that formal portraits, pictorial landscapes, and other kinds of genre scenes are not."—Introd.

Contents: (1) Eugène Atget and the nineteenth century; (2) Cartier-Bresson and Europe in the twentieth century; (3) Walker Evans and America before the war; (4) Robert Frank and America since the war.

Interview between Westerbeck and Meyerowitz, p.373–403. Notes, p.[410]–12. Bibliography, p.[413]–22. Index, [423]–30.

O107 Gernsheim, Helmut. The origins of photography. [London], Thames and Hudson, [1982]. 280p. 191 il. (part col.), plates, ports. (The history of photography, 1)

See GLAH 1:O28 for original annotation.

"The History of Photography by Helmut and Alison Gernsheim was first published in 1955 by the Oxford Univ. Pr., and republished in a new and enlarged edition in 1969 by Thames and Hudson. The first part of the History appears here in a revised third edition, with a new chapter, 'The origins of photography in Italy,' by Daniela Palazzoli."—t.p. verso.

Covers the pre-photographic era through the use of the calotype and other paper process, while Gernsheim's The rise of photography (see following entry) commences with the advent of the albumen and collodian processes. The final three sections of his History of photography ("The gelatine period," "Some applications of photography," "The evolution of colour photography," and "Photography and the printed page") have not been released in a new ed.

Text and organization essentially unchanged from relevant section of the author's History of photography, but with additional illustrations. Excellent source for historical data, photographers, technologies.

See GLAH 1:O28 for original publication and preceding entry for first part of this new ed. The second part of the author's History of Photography appears here in a revised third ed.

Commences with the introduction of the collodion process (c.1850) and continues through the development of dry plate processes. Text and organization essentially unchanged from original History, but with additional illustrations. Excellent source for historical data, photographers, technologies.

Notes, p.271–75. Biography [H. Gernsheim], p.276. Bibliography, p.277–79. Name index, p.281–85.

O109 Marien, Mary Warner. Photography and its critics: a cultural history, 1839–1900. [N.Y.], Cambridge Univ. Pr., [1997]. 222p. 68 il. (Cambridge perspectives on photography)

"Presents photography as an idea, shaped by social concerns and inherited concepts, and as a burgeoning visual practice. When photography is viewed as a multifaceted social idea, vested in the practice of but not limited to image making, the oft-made distinction between photographic document and photographic art can be transcended."—Pref. Consistently citing 19th-century sources as well as more modern critics, provides a "history of the idea of photography," revealing both the existence of diverse photographic practices and shifting notions of modernity.

Based on an earlier catalog and exhibition, The mechanical eye, a historical guide to Australian photography and photographers. Sydney, Macleay Museum, University of Sydney, 1977. The "Images of Australian photography" section combines 51 plates with a page providing information on the photographer(s) and numerous extracts from mostly contemporaneous sources. "Professional photographers to 1900 and amateur photographers to 1880" lists names, dates, and addresses for photographers, and is interspersed with ads, cartoons, and articles from the period.

Clues for dating photographs, p.111–15. Sources, p.259–64. Index, p.265–70.

O119 Holden, Robert. Photography in colonial Australia: the mechanical eye and the illustrated book. [Sydney], Hordern House, [1988]. 172p. il. plates.

Combines an essay on the introduction and development of photography in Australia and an examination of photographic genres with an extensively annotated bibliography of 130 works published in Australia in the 19th century with original albumen photographs.

References, p.165–66. Index of photographers, photographic studios, printers and publishers, p.167–69. General index, p.170–71.

Catalog of the exhibition, National Gallery of Australia (1988). "Does not seek to tell the story of Australia in pictures, nor the history of photography as the successive arrival of a number of processes. Its nucleus is fine photographs and their makers, and the reasons behind the changing subject matter and physical appearance of photographs in different periods."—Pref.

O121 Willis, Anne-Marie. Picturing Australia: a history of photography. [North Ryde, NSW, Australia], Angus and Robertson, [1988]. 304p. il. plates.

"The aim is not to write a definitive account, but to begin to develop photographic history on different premises."—Pref. Examines a multiplicity of photographic practices, developing technologies, and the many functions of photography in Australian society to produce an account of photography's varied role in Australia.

Bibliography, p.280–95. Index, p.297–304.

Canada

O122 Greenhill, Ralph, and Birrell, Andrew. Canadian photography, 1839–1920. Toronto, Coach House Pr., [1979]. [184]p. 104 plates.

Substantial revision and expansion of Early photography in Canada (GLAH 1:O69). Well-illustrated historical survey of early Canadian photography.

Selected bibliography, p.[179]. Index, p.[180–84].

O123 Private realms of light: amateur photography in Canada, 1839–1940. Ed. by Lilly Koltun. [Markham, Ont.], Fitzhenry and Whiteside, [1984]. 335p. il. plates (part col.)

Catalog of an exhibition held at Public Archives Canada, Ottawa (1983), and other locations. With five essays by members of the National Photography Collection, this text serves as an excellent introduction to the growth of amateur photography in Canada, with extensively illustrated discussion of clubs, salons, exhibitions, and photographic processes and technology.

Biographies of photographers, p.304–28. Bibliography, p.329–32. Index, p.333–35.

France

O124 Bouqueret, Christian. Des années folles aux années noires: la nouvelle vision photographique en France, 1920–1940. Paris, Marval, 1997. 285p. 269 il., plates (part col.)

Presents in four sections photographic practices at the beginning of the period under examination, the development of the modernist idiom in France, the spread of images via the press, journalism, and exhibitions, and an analysis of photographic activities within specific arenas (fashion, portraiture, the nude, reportage, etc.). Includes numerous illustrations of important books, magazines, and related ephemera. Text interspersed with focused inserts on individual topics.

Biographies, p.269–79. Bibliographie générale critique, p.280–81. Index, p.282–84.

O125 Buerger, Janet E. French daguerreotypes. Chicago, Univ. of Chicago Pr., [1989]. 256p. 268 il., 22 plates (col.)

Primarily a catalog of the Gabriel Cromer Collection in the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House. In-depth account of early photographic practice and the role of the daguerreotype in French society.

Contemporary sources, p.139–49. French methods and materials for coloring Daguerreotypes, by Alice Swan, p.150–63. Bibliographic notes, p.177–91. Catalog of Eastman House Daguerreotypes and books illustrated with engravings from Daguerreotypes, p.193–250. Index, p.251–56.

O126 Jammes, Andre, and Janis, Eugenia Parry. The art of French calotype: with a critical dictionary of photographers, 1845–1870. Princeton, Princeton Univ. Pr., [1983]. 284p. 131 il., 69 plates.

Primarily an aesthetic history with consistent incorporation of technical advancements, personalities, and cultural imperatives. Includes extensive excerpts from accounts of the time. Biographical essays in the "Critical dictionary" (p.[129]–258) are often lengthy, with additional references to exhibitions, publications, and writings.

Bibliography, p.269–75. Index, p.277–84.

- O127 Gouvion Saint-Cyr, Agnes de; Lemagny, Jean-Claude; and Sayag, Alain. Art or Nature: 20th century French photography. [N.Y.], Rizzoli, 1988. 176p. (part col.)

Catalog of the exhibition organized by the Barbican Art Gallery and the Association française d'action artistique and held at the Barbican Art Gallery (1988). Although the essays are very brief (Pictorialism, Rapportage I, Dada and Surrealism, Rapportage II, Contemporary photography) they do include references to important examples of photographic literature. The "Biographies" section provides additional information on the 39 photographers presented.

- O128 [Marbot, Bernard]. After Daguerre: masterworks of French photography (1848-1900) from the Bibliothèque nationale. N.Y., Metropolitan Museum of Art, in assoc. with Berger-Levrault, Paris, [1980]. 187p. il. plates.

Catalog of the exhibition, Metropolitan Museum of Art (1980-81), and other locations. Published in France as Regards sur la photographie en France au XIXe siècle: 180 chefs-d'oeuvre du Département des estampes et de la photographie, Bibliothèque nationale, Paris, Berger-Levrault, 1980.

Brief essay by Weston Naef, "The beginnings of photography as art in France" (p.15-70), examines the continuing development of 19th-century photography in France after 1850 within technical, cultural, and political contexts. Bernard Marbot's annotated catalog section (p.[69]-171) adds considerable additional biographical and contextual information.

Selected bibliography, p.180-83.

- O129 Thézy, Marie de. La photographie humaniste: 1930-1960, histoire d'un mouvement en France. Avec la collab. de Claude Nori. Paris, Contrejour, [1992]. 239p. il. plates.

Thorough examination of a photographic perspective that is considered to be uniquely French, a meeting of "modernité" and "réalisme poétique." Includes discussion of the role of illustrated magazines and monographs, salons and agencies, and presents a wide range of photographers beyond those popularly known.

Biographies et bibliographies, p.225-34. Revue et magazines, p.235. Index des personnes citées, p.236-38.

Germany and Austria

- O130 Benteler, Petra. Deutsche Fotografie nach 1945 = German photography after 1945. [Kassel, Fotoforum, 1979]. 228p. il.

Catalog of the exhibition, Kasseler Kunstverein (1979), and other locations. This selection of three works each by 50 photographers, including several who worked for magazines or in advertising, gives an overview of German photography in the post-war period. Each photographer's entry includes a brief bio-critical presentation.

Contents: Style critique of postwar photography in West Germany, by Wolfgang Kemp; German photography after 1945, by Petra Benteler.

Bibliografie, p.224-27. Index, p.228.

- O131 German photography 1870-1970: power of a medium. Klaus Honnef, Rolf Sachsse and Karin Thomas (eds.) and Kunst- und Ausstellungshalle der Bundesrepublik Deutschland. With essays by Volker Albus, Hermann Glaser, Klaus Honnef . . . et al. [Trans., Pauline Cumbers, Ishbel Flett.] [Köln], DuMont, [1997]. 323p. il., 122 plates (part col.)

Catalog of the exhibition Deutsche Fotografie: Macht eines Mediums 1870-1970, Kunst- und Ausstellungshalle der Bundesrepublik Deutschland in Bonn (1997). Thirteen essays emphasize photography's political and social role as an instrument of the state or documentary tool, with discussions of photography in the Weimar Republic, the Third Reich, the German Democratic Republic and the Federal Republic of Germany. Plates expand coverage to more aesthetic realms.

Photographs in the exhibition, p.276-313. Biographical and bibliographic notes, p.315-21.

- O132 Geschichte der Fotografie in Österreich. Bad Ischl, Verein zur Erarbeitung der Geschichte der Fotografie in Österreich, 1983. 2v. il. (part col.), ports.

Catalog of the exhibition, Museum des 20. Jahrhunderts, Vienna (1983-1985), and other locations.

V.1 (574p.) is an extensively illustrated history up to the early 1980s, including daguerreotypes, stereo views, travel and expedition photography, pictorialism, and propaganda photography. V.2 (220p.) contains discussion on techniques, amateur photography and photo salons, excerpts from critical writings of 1839 to 1940, and photographer's biographies (p.[93]-196).

Diverse publikationen österreichischer Autoren, v.2, p.197-98. Fotozeitschriften in Österreich, v.2, p.199-200. Zeitschriften Chronologie, v.2, p.201. Weitere Periodika, v.2, p.202. Bedeutende fotografische Ausstellungen in Österreich, v.2, p.203-08. Publikationen zur österreichischen Fotografiegeschichte, v.2, p.209. Namenregister, v.2, p.211-20.

- O133 Hoerner, Ludwig. Das photographische Gewerbe in Deutschland 1839-1914. [Dusseldorf], GFW-Verlag, [1989]. 256p. il. (part col.)

With an emphasis on the "photographic trade" instead of photography as a fine art practice. The text and illustrations survey photography's role as both a recorder and vehicle of popular culture during the period. Emphasizes professional photographers, picture publishing houses, the carte-de-visite, postcards, group portraits of professional associations and clubs, family portraits, theater portraits, etc.

Photographische Fachbetriebe in der Bundesrepublik Deutschland, p.236-45. Anmerkungen, p.246-49. Literaturverzeichnis, p.249-50.

- O134 Kempe, Fritz. Daguerreotypie in Deutschland: vom Charme der frühen Fotografie. Seebruck am Chiemsee, Heering, 1979. 270p. il., plates (part col.) (Neue Fotothek)

Extensive coverage of early photographic activities and daguerreotypists in Germany. Organized by regions and major cities, with some chapters devoted to individual practitioners.

Literaturverzeichnis, p.261–64. Namenregister, p.267–68. Sachregister, p.269–70.

O135 Kuehn, Karl Gernot. Caught: the art of photography in the German Democratic Republic. Berkeley, Univ. of California Pr., [1997]. 305p. il.

Beginning with the "socialist formation period" of the 1940s to the 1970s. Readable text on the political parameters that defined appropriate photographic behavior in the GDR. The work of the late 1970s and 1980s reveals a growing artistic liberation that continued to be suppressed but could not be eradicated.

Notes, p.273–89. Bibliography, p.291–98. Index, p.299–305.

O136 Österreichische Fotografie seit 1945 aus den Beständen der Österreichischen Fotogalerie im Rahmen der Salzburger Landessammlungen Rupertinum. [Hrsg. von] Margit Zuckriegl. [Salzburg, Österreichische Fotogalerie im Rahmen der Salzburger Landessammlungen Rupertinum in zusammenarb. mit dem Bundesministerium für Unterricht, Kunst und Sport: Ausg. für den Buchhandel im Universitätsverlag Anton Pustet, 1989]. 379p. il., plates (part col.)

Based on the collection of the Österreichische Fotogalerie. Zuckriegl's brief essay outlines the development of Austrian photography in the post-war era. The photographers section is extensive, with either biographical and bibliographic information or a short critical essay on each photographer, occasionally both.

O137 Peters, Ursula. Stilgeschichte der Fotografie in Deutschland: 1839–1900. Köln, DuMont, [1979]. 424p. il., plates.

Survey-like coverage from the camera obscura to the Jugendstil, touching on technical aspects, travel photography, portraiture and landscape, early relationship between photography and painting, and so on.

Anmerkungen, p.363–87. Literaturverzeichnis, p.389–415. Verzeichnis der im Text erwähnten, nicht abgebildeten Bildbeispiele, p.416–17. Namenverzeichnis, p.418–24.

O138 Photography at the Bauhaus. [Ed. for the Bauhaus-Archiv by Jeannine Fiedler.] Cambridge, MIT Press, 1990. 362p. il. (part col.)

Catalog of an exhibition of works from the Bauhaus-Archiv, Berlin (1990). German ed., Berlin, Das Archiv, Nishen, 1990; French ed., Paris, Carre, 1990.

With nine essays on "The masters" of the Bauhaus and six essays on "The topics" (typophoto, architecture and product photography, stage photography, etc.) this vol. provides excellent coverage of photography at the Bauhaus. Extensively illustrated with plates, all 435 works from the exhibition are reproduced in the Index of works, p.287–338.

Biographies, p.339–56. Bibliography, p.358–59. List of artists presented, p.361.

O139 Silber und Salz: zur Frühzeit der Photographie im deutschen Sprachraum, 1839–1860. Agfa Foto-Historama. Hrsg. von Bodo von Dewitz und Reinhard Matz. Köln, Braus, 1989. 696p. il., plates (part col.)

Catalog of the sesquicentennial exhibition, Josef-Haubrich-Kunsthalle, Cologne (1989), and other locations. With 24 essays this is the most extensive work on early photography in German-speaking lands.

Selective contents: Daguerre oder Talbot? Zur Konkurrenz der Verfahren im deutschen Sprachraum, von Bodo von Dewitz; Alexander von Humboldt: Förderer der frühen Photographie, von Hanno Beck; Trudpert Schneider and Söhne als Wanderphotographen durch Europa, von Leif Geiges and Reinhard Matz; Erotik der Rührung: zur stereoskopischen Akt-Daguerreotypie, von Otto Hochreiter; Der Verkauf photographischer Bilder in den frühen Jahren der Photographie, Beispiel: Köln, von Werner Neite.

Great Britain and Ireland

O140 Bartram, Michael. The Pre-Raphaelite camera: aspects of Victorian photography. Boston, Little Brown, [1985]. 200p. il., plates, ports.

British ed., London, Weidenfeld and Nicolson, 1985.

Rather than attempt to establish a strict corollary between the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood and early photographers, Bartram suggests that shared inclinations such as an interest in "truth to nature" and a certain romanticism of the era led to similar pictorial practices. Numerous examples from both painting and photography, especially from the 1850s to the early 1870s.

Biographical notes, p.[181]–92. List of paintings and drawings, p.[193]. Notes, p.[194]–96. Bibliography, p.[197]. Index, p.[198]–200.

O141 The golden age of British photography 1839–1900: photographs from the Victoria and Albert Museum, London, with selections from the Philadelphia Museum of Art . . . [et al.] Ed. and introd. by Mark Haworth-Booth. Philadelphia, Philadelphia Museum of Art, [1984]. 189p. il., plates, ports.

Catalog of the exhibition, Victoria and Albert Museum (1984), and other locations. A limited ed. portfolio of 300 copies, The golden age of British photography, with 16 hand-pulled photogravures, was also published in conjunction with the exhibition (N.Y., Silver Mountain Foundation, 1985).

Haworth-Booth's brief essays and biographical sketches profiling each section of the catalog are supplemented by an additional five essays, providing a good introductory text to this period.

References, p.189. Index, p.[190]–[91].

Italy

O146 Becchetti, Piero. Fotografi e fotografia in Italia, 1839–1880. [Roma], Quasar, 1978. 320p. il., plates. Combination of introductory essay on the period, directory-like listing of photographers by city, and plates. Entries in the directory section sometimes include only name and address, but generally provide more extensive biographical information, including examples of the photographers' studio cards.

Indice dei nomi, p.311–17. Indice delle tavole, p.318–19.

O147 Bertelli, Carlo. L'Immagine fotografica, 1845–1945. [Torino], Einaudi, [1979]. 2v. 676 plates. (Storia d'Italia. Annali, 2)

Integrates photographs from all venues, artistic, propaganda, portraits, etc. Bertelli's essay includes discussion of the introduction of various processes into Italy, salons and exhibitions, Futurism, both World Wars, and the rise of fascism. An appendix section reprints important Italian photographic texts from 1839–1941.

Plate section includes: (1) Il paesaggio fotografico; (2) Il Risorgimento; (3) Il catalogo dell'Italia unita; (4) Un paese moderno; (5) La grande guerra; (6) Vigilia e autoritratto di una dittatura; (7) Verso un linguaggio fotografico italiano; (8) Guerra e resistenza.

Appendice di testi e documenti, v.2, p.[199]–303. Indice dei fotografi, v.2, p.[305]–08.

O148 Fotografia italiana dell'Ottocento. [Milano], Electa; [Firenze], Alinari, [1979]. 193p. il., plates (part col.) Catalog of the exhibition, Palazzo Pitti (1979). In addition to the catalog essays, a separate section presents a region-by-region history. Entries on the individual photographers are fairly extensive.

Contents: 1) Fotografia e storia, by Giulio Bollati; 2) La notizia dell'invenzione dello "specchio dotato di memoria" arriva in Italia, by Daniela Palazzoli; 3) L'età del collodio, by Marina Miraglia; 4) La massificazione della fotografia, by Italo Zannier.

Bibliografia, p.185–89. Indice dei nomi, p.[190]–93.

O149 Lista, Giovanni. Futurismo e fotografia. [Milano], Multhipla, [1979]. 355p., 326 plates (part col.) (Collana "Avanguardia")

Discusses and illustrates stylistic antecedents of Futurist photography and photography's relationships to the expression of Futurism in other media. Two appendixes contain checklists of five prominent Futurist photography exhibitions and 22 Futurist texts.

Indice degli autori, p.353–54.

O150 Valtorta, Roberta. Pagine di fotografia italiana, 1900–1998 = Pages of Italian photography, 1900–1998. [Milano], Charta, 1998. 214p. plates (part col.)

Catalog of the exhibition, Galleria Gottardo, Lugano, 1998. Not really a history proper, but a collection of photographers of the 20th century. Each photographer is represented by one work, which is accompanied on the facing page by a brief interpretive commentary on the photographer and the photograph.

List of works, p.209–14.

O151 Zannier, Italo. Storia della fotografia italiana. [Roma], Laterza, 1986. 423p., 289 plates (part col.) (Grandi opere)

Provides survey-like coverage of photography in Italy from the use of the camera obscura to the mid-1980s, including discussion of the Alinari, Futurism, Mussolini and fascism, and the "paparazzo."

Note, p.[387]–400. Bibliografia generale, p.[401]–02. Indici dei nomi, p.[403]–19.

Trans. of Canto a la realidad: fotografía latinoamericana, 1860–1993. Barcelona, Lunewerg, 1993.

Billeter's essay and selections present work that in her estimation reveals a uniquely Latin American cultural presence, social structures, and a photographers' "moral conception." Not designed to be encyclopedic, but a good overall survey.

Biographical summaries, p.381–91. Bibliography, p.393–94. General works, p.395.

O155 Carvalho, Maria Luiza Melo. Novas travessias: contemporary Brazilian photography. London, Verso, [1996]. 191p. il. (part col.)

Introductory essay situates contemporary photographic practice within the context of photographic modernism in Brazil. Plates introduced by excerpts from the 35 photographers included.

O160 Fotografie Lateinamerika von 1860 bis heute. [Konzept und Realis. von Ausstellung und Katalog: Erika Billeter]. Bern, Benteli, [1981]. 416p. il., plates, ports.

Catalog of the exhibition, Kunsthau Zurich (1981). Trans. as Fotografia latinoamericana desde 1860 hasta nuestros (Madrid, El Viso, 1982) without most essays and with variations in photographers included.

While the eight essays are too limited to provide much more than brief historical context to this extensively illustrated catalog, this was the first major European exhibition of Latin American photography.

Biografien, p.[381]–99. Katalog, p.[402]–11. Zeittafel lateinamerikanischer Geschichte, p.412–13. Ausgewählte Literatur, p.415. Publikationen von oder zu einzelnen Fotografen, p.416.

O161 Gomez, Juan. La fotografía en la Argentina: su historia y evolución en el siglo XIX, 1840–1899. [Buenos Aires, Abadia Editoria, 1986]. 180p. il., plates.

After a general presentation of photography's origins in Europe and early photographic processes, Gomez's text moves to the introduction of the daguerreotype in South America, tarjetas de visita (carte de visite) and related developments, extensively citing contemporaneous materials. Each page of the text is marked with the year(s) that page discusses, providing quick chronological access. The Chronologia is an alphabetical listing of photographers with dates and comments on their significant activities.

- O177 Ceská fotografie 90. let = Czech photography of the 1990s. [By] Vladimír Birgus . . . [et al.] [Prague], Kant [Distr. by D.A.P., 1998]. 205p. il. plates (part col.)

Catalog of the exhibition, Chicago Cultural Center (1999). Birgus's detailed 1990s chronology of events in Czech photography, his essay "Certainty and searching in contemporary Czech photography," and the photographers' biographical entries combine to deliver a good survey on contemporary trends.

- O178 A Fenykep varazsa, 1839–1989 = The magic of photography, 1839–1989. [Ed. by Mihály Gera]. [Budapest], [Association of Hungarian Photographers], [Szabad Tér], [1989]. 415p. il., plates.

Combined catalog of 12 exhibitions covering 150 years of Hungarian photography. Organized by Budapest Art Weeks and the Association of Hungarian Photographers, 1989. In spite of somewhat problematic translations this collection of 16 brief essays, primarily by Hungarian writers, gives reasonable coverage of Hungarian photography from the daguerreotype era to the current day.

- O179 Fotografija u Hrvatskoj, 1848–1951 = Photography in Croatia, 1848–1951. Ed. by Vladimir Malekovic. Photographs . . . sel. by Marija Tonkovic i Vladimir Malekovic. [Trans. by Sonia Wild Bicanic and Nikolina Jovanovic.] Zagreb, Muzej za umjetnost i obrt, 1994. 459p. il. (part col.)

Catalog of the exhibition, Muzej za umjetnost i obrt (1994). Fifteen essays mainly devoted to regions within Croatia. Explores the development of photography as both a uniquely Croatian experience and as one colored by Western influences. Good coverage of local clubs, salons, and the impact of exhibitions such as the appearance of the Deutsche Werkbund's "Film und Foto" in Zagreb in 1930.

Comparative chronology, p.401–22. Biographies and catalog, p.423–54. Index of photographers, p.455–59.

- O180 Fotografija kod Srba 1839–1989 = Serbian photography 1839–1989. Exhibition and catalogue planned by Miodrag Djordjevic. Beograd, Srpska akademija nauka i umetnosti, 1991. 403p. il. (part col.) (Galerija srpske akademije nauki i umetnosti, 69)

Catalog of the exhibition, Galerija srpske akademije nauki i umetnosti (1991). With contributions by eighteen authors focusing on specific aspects of Serbian photography and extensive illustrations, the catalog provides a good survey of photography in Serbia. Text in Serbo-Croatian (Cyrillic) with English summaries; captions to photographs in Serbo-Croatian.

Selected bibliography, 1839–1989, p.159–85. Important dates in the history of Serbian photography, p.186–91.

- O181 Fotografia polska, featuring original masterworks from public and private collections in Poland, 1839–1945, and a selection of avant-garde photography, film, and video from 1945 to the present. [N.Y., International Center of Photography, 1979] 49p. il. plates (part col.)

Catalog of the exhibition, International Center of Photography (1979). Revised version appeared as catalog of the exhibition La Photographie polonaise, 1900–1981, Centre Georges Pompidou (1981).

This small catalog provides a good assessment of the history of photographic practice in Poland.

Contents: A photographic heritage, by William Ewing; Notes on the history of Polish photography, by Juliusz Garztecki; Some notes on the pictorial movement, by Adam Sobota; Twentieth century experimentation, by Urszula Czarotyska; Polish press photography, by Jan Kosidowski.

Checklist of the exhibition issued separately.

Presenting work by more than 50 photographers from the Moscow, Leningrad, Minsk, and other areas, the essays relate current photographic trends to both the tradition of Soviet photography and the break-up of the Soviet state.

Selective contents: Photo manifesto, by Walker, Ursitti, and McGinnis; Photography since the revolution, by Alexander Lavrentiev; Soviet artistic photography, by Valery Stigeev; A western view, by Grant Kester.

Index, p.226–31.

- O183 Photography in Russia, 1840–1940. Ed. by David Elliott. [London], Thames and Hudson, [1992]. 256p. il. (part col.)

Four chapters on the history of Japanese photography from 1848 to 1982 are followed by chapters discussing topics depicted, and finally information about schools, associations, galleries and exhibitions, collections and museums, and biographies of 68 photographers.

P. Decorative and Applied Arts

This chapter is classified first by general works, then by the principal types of the decorative and applied arts. These sections are further classified, where expedient, into period and regional subdivisions. Costumes and textiles have been treated in particular depth in the belief that these related subjects are of special interest to the art historian; given the thematic overlap between the two subjects, cross-references have been kept to a minimum, the reader being urged to consult both sections in tandem.

1st ed., 1971.

"The aim of this book is to highlight those points of fashion which express changes in style over a period of nearly four centuries."—Introd. A brief introduction provides a short historical overview. The remainder of the work comprises a series of chronologically arranged near full-page colored drawings by the author, based on portrait paintings or fashion prints from each period discussed, and are accompanied by brief analytical commentaries. Focus is on Western high-end fashion.

Glossary, p.6–7. Index, p.159–60.

P87 ———. The illustrated encyclopaedia of costume and fashion: from 1066 to the present. Rev. and exp. ed. London, Studio Vista, 1997. 192p. col. il.

1st ed., 1971.

180 near full-page colored drawings by the author, based on period sources. Divided into 16 sections. The organization and part of the contents duplicate the author's The illustrated encyclopaedia of costume and fashion 1550–1920 (see preceding entry).

Glossary, p.8–9. Index, p.191–92.

P88 Colangeli, Oronzo. Dizionario della moda e del costume. Galatina, Salentina, 1986. 571p. il.

Dictionary of more than 10,000 current terms relating to dress, accessories, textiles and embroidery. Italian-language terms predominate, although since many foreign terms (especially English, French, and German) have been adopted into Italian usage, these too are listed. Definitions are brief, and examples of use in context are provided.

P89 The complete footwear dictionary. Comp. and ed. by William A. Rossi. Malabar, Fl., Krieger, 1994. vii, 171p. il.

Alphabetically organized guide to the terminology of footwear fashion, retailing, and industry. Approximately 4,000 items and definitions are discussed. Appendix I: Origin of footwear-related words; Appendix II: English words with foot or shoe origins.

P90 Costume language: a dictionary of dress terms. Comp. and il. by Stephanie Curtis Davies. Malvern [U.K.], Cressrelles, 1994. 183p. il.

This posthumously published dictionary provides succinct descriptions and definitions for approximately 2,500 dress types and styles. Includes entries on historically important figures in the world of dress. Appendixes: Couturiers, designers and couture houses; Costume collections.

Exhibitions of ancient civilisations, p.182. Bibliography, p.177-78.

- P91 Guillemard, Colette. Les mots du costume. Paris, Berlin, 1991. 349p. il. (Collection Le français retrouve, 24)

Investigation into the origin and evolution of dress terminology. Covers not only French-language terms, but also words imported from abroad, or used by specific groups. Accessories and fabric types are also considered. Each chapter focuses on a specific theme; relevant terms within the chapter are arranged alphabetically. Illustrations are taken mostly from early fashion prints and posters.

Contents: (I) Costumes, vêtements et habits; (II) Le corps du sujet; (III) Des pieds . . . ; (IV) . . . À la tête; (V) Le linge de corps; (VI) Ornaments et accessoires; (VII) Les mots de la couturière; (VIII) Les matériaux de nos vêtements.

- P93 Loschek, Ingrid. Reclams Mode- und Kostümlexikon. 3. rev. und erw. Aufl. Stuttgart, Reclam, [1994]. 551p. il. (part col.)
1st ed., 1987; 2d ed., 1988.

Series of chronologically arranged chapters briefly discussing dress and textile history of specific periods, beginning with the early cultures of southern Europe, the Mediterranean, Mesopotamia and Asia, and the Prehistoric period in North and Central Europe, and ending with a global perspective on the 20th century. Particular attention is paid to the relationship between fashion and society. A dictionary-format listing of more than 2,000 terms and their definitions follows. European couturiers, designers and design companies, from the 18th century to the present are separately listed, as are sources of fashion images from the 16th century on.

- P95 Racinet, Albert Charles Auguste. The historical encyclopedia of costume. Introd. by Dr. Aileen Ribeiro. N.Y., Facts on File, 1988. 320p. col. il.

See GLAH 1:P99 for original French ed.

This ed. has numerous revisions, deletions, and modifications to Racinet's original. For example, many of the plates in Racinet's original work included plates on furniture and ornaments, and these have been eliminated from the present ed. Parts of the text have also been reorganized to follow a more straightforward chronology. European dress is the principal focus of this publication; countries that were part of France's colonial history (China, India, North Africa), as well as Japan, are also considered.

The introduction by Ribeiro, which sets Racinet's original work in its historical and publishing context, precedes a selection of Racinet's descriptions and approximately 150 of his original plates.

Contents: (1) The ancient world; (2) 19th century antique civilizations; (3) Europe from Byzantium to the 1800s; (4) Traditional costumes of the 1880s.

1st ed., 1980; 2d ed., 1988.

Wide-ranging biographical dictionary based on Who's who in fashion, by Josephine Ellis Watkins (N.Y., Office of Community Resources, Fashion Institute of Technology, 1972). Covering greater and lesser fashion designers, information sources include questionnaires, press clippings, and personal interviews. The emphasis is on 20th-century personalities although historically important figures are included. Also included is "a selection of the many newcomers who promise to become the establishment of the future."—Pref. A final section, "The stylemakers," covers influential figures in the fashion world who were not themselves designers.

Contents: Appendix: Council of Fashion Designers of America (CFDA) Awards; Coty American Fashion Critics' Awards; Nieman Marcus Awards.

Bibliography, p.285-92. Index of designers, p.293-94. Index, p.295-300.

- P97 Stevens Cox, J. An illustrated dictionary of hairdressing & wigmaking. Containing words, terms and phrases (current and obsolete) dialectical, foreign, and technical, used in Britain and America pertaining to the crafts of hairdressing and wigmaking: also words derived from these crafts having a wider use. Rev. ed. N.Y., Drama Book, 1984. 312p. il.
1st ed., Philadelphia, G.S. MacManus, 1966.

Extensively illustrated, extremely comprehensive, alphabetically organized dictionary. "The aim of the present work is to list and describe not only the literary, vernacular and technical craft words of the 20th century, but also archaic, dialectal and obsolete words, their uses and meanings. Words of foreign origin that are and were habitually used in the hairdressing craft in Britain to describe processes or coiffures are also noticed. The compilation is based on English and foreign printed and manuscript sources."—Introd. Many of the illustrations are taken from 18th–20th century fashion plates and journals. Cross references.

Dictionaries and Encyclopedias

P145 Dozy, R. P. A. Dictionnaire détaillé des noms des vêtements chez les Arabes: ouvrage couronné et publié par la troisième classe de l'Institut Royale des Pays-Bas. Beirut, Librairie du Liban, [1969?]. viii, 444p.

1st ed., Amsterdam, Muller, 1845.

Pioneering dictionary of Islamic dress terminology is based on research into the manuscript sources of the different Arabic-speaking countries (Africa, Arabia, Persia, Syria, etc.). Most of the manuscripts date from the medieval period and were surveyed in libraries of the Low Countries, and especially that at Leiden.

An introductory historical survey precedes the dictionary, which is ordered following the Arabic. Each entry includes an extensive discussion of the term, the sources where it is to be found, and the parts of the Islamic world where the particular dress item is/was worn. Where possible, French and/or non-French language equivalents also are given.

Histories and Handbooks

P146 Besançon, Jean. Costumes of Morocco. Pref. by James Bynon. Trans. by Caroline Stone. N.Y., Kegan Paul International (Distr. by Routledge, Chapman and Hall, 1990). 204p. il., 60 col. plates, map.

Trans. of Costumes du Maroc. Paris, Horizons de France, 1942; 2d ed., Aix-en-Provence, Edisud, 1988.

The original publication was a luxury ed. of only 300 copies. This later ed. has updated texts, where appropriate, but the original hand-colored illustrations have been kept. Examines the derivatives of the ancient draped costume, worn throughout the Mediterranean world. Sketches delineate the various stages in the history of the draping process, and provide specific male and female examples of dress, accessories, and jewelry.

The plates are divided among the different groups that live (or lived) in Morocco. Descriptive essays include historical surveys of culture and society in Morocco.

Contents: The townspeople; The Chaoui; The peoples of northern Morocco; The mountain tribes of central Morocco;

The Chleuh; The Saharan tribes practising long-range nomadism; The urban Jews; The Jewish communities of southern Morocco.

Warszawa, Wydawnictwa Uniwersytetu Warszawskiego, 1991. 448p. il., 256 plates (Prace Biblioteki Uniwersyteckiej w Warszawie = Acta bibliothecae universitatis varsoviensis, XI)

Catalog of drawings formerly in the collection of the last King of Poland, Stanislas Augustus Poniatowski, and now in the Drawings Collection at the University of Warsaw Library. These drawings illustrate late-18th-century court and everyday dress of the different groups living under the Ottoman Empire, especially those in Istanbul; they also provide information concerning the furnishing of interiors. Groups represented include Armenians, Arabs, Ciliciens, (Western) Europeans, Greeks, Jews, and the various echelons of Turkish society.

The drawings are divided into the following categories: the Sultan's court, and various court officials; officers of state; ecclesiastical dress; the military; civil servants; miscellaneous; and buildings and monuments. A full catalog entry is provided for each drawing; titles are translated into French.

P150 Mayer, L. A. Mamluk costume: a survey. Geneva, Kundig, 1952. 120p. 20 plates.

Building on Dozy's fundamental research (see GLAH 2:P145), attempts to connect the literary terms analyzed by Dozy to visual equivalents. With Mamluk costume in Egypt and Syria, 1250–1517, as the principal focus, this was the first 20th-century attempt to survey an area of Islamic dress.

An introductory essay reviews bibliographical sources such as Arab chronicles, manuals for government officials, illuminated manuscripts, and bronze objects. European travel accounts are also discussed. A separate section analyzes the importance of early Italian paintings as a visual resource since (as the author notes) few actual costume pieces have survived.

P153 Silks for the sultans: Ottoman imperial garments from Topkapi Palace. Photography and concept [by] Ahmet Ertug. Essays by Patricia L. Baker, Hülya Tezcan, and Jennifer Wearden. [Istanbul], Ertug and Kocabiyik, 1996. 250p. col. il.

Outstandingly illustrated, superbly produced. Based on approximately 5,000 garments in the collection of the Topkapi Palace Museum, this publication illustrates some of the most beautiful and impressive Ottoman period silk kaftans and other dress items worn by the sultans and (male) members of their families. Each garment is illustrated complete, usually back as well as front. Large-scale photographs show details of motifs, weave structure, and additional workmanship (e.g., embroidery). A brief descriptive entry accompanies each set of photographs. Reproductions of illuminated manuscripts and early costume books, showing kaftans in use, are also included. The plates are divided into sections based on motif, fabric type and origin, and method of decoration; a chronological order is followed within these sections.

Contents: The Imperial robe collection at Topkapi Palace Museum, by Hülya Tezcan; Textile patterns on royal Ottoman kaftans, by Patricia L. Baker; The technical skill of Ottoman craftsmen, by Jennifer Wearden.

P172 Peacock, John. Men's fashion: the complete source-book. With over 1000 color illustrations. N.Y., Thames and Hudson, 1996. 216p. il.

Chronological review of the development of men's fashion in the Western tradition from the 1790s to the late 20th century. While focusing on clothes worn by members of the upper classes, the later period also covers street style fashions. Divided into illustrative sections comprising colored drawings by the author, each covering an approximate decade. Within these sections clothes are grouped into headings relevant to the period covered, and captions at the end of these sections provide annotations concerning color, cut, and fashion details.

- P192 Deslandres, Yvonne, and Müller, Florence. Histoire de la mode au XXe siècle. Paris, Somogy, 1986. 404p. il. (part col.), ports. (part col.)

Apart from an introduction covering the broader, international context (for example the emancipation of women, the emergence of the couturier icon, and the contribution of the media), deals primarily with French dress from 1900 to the 1980s. Chronologically organized, six specific periods are identified, and designers, dress, and accessories are treated for each. The many illustrations include photographs of significant events, street action, and runway shows; 19th- and 20th-century fashion journal plates; and 19th-century photographs.

Trans. of Les dessus et les dessous de la bourgeoisie: une histoire du vêtement au XIX siècle. Paris, Fayard, 1981.

Revised English-language ed., the product of collaboration and revision between author and translator. "Describes the early manifestations, stages, and consequences of [the 19th century's] dual trend toward differentiation and similarity. To understand contemporary dress we must study the nineteenth century, the century that pushed to the fore the individual and the anonymous crowd, dandyism and uniformity, distinctiveness and conformism."—Pref. Emphasis is on bourgeois clothing, examining the so-called "trivial" components of dress: underpants, petticoats, neckties, shawls, corsets, and socks. Focuses on the Second Empire period, and examines 19th-century etiquette manuals and novels as indicators of the social meaning of dress.

Contents: (I) Toward a history of appearances; (II) Clothing's old and new regimes; (III) The vestimentary landscape of the nineteenth century; (IV) Traditional trades and the rise of ready-made clothing; (V) The department store and the spread of bourgeois clothing; (VI) New pretensions, new distinctions; (VII) The imperatives of propriety; (VIII) Derivations from the norm; (IX) Invisible clothing; (X) The circulation of fashions.

1st ed., Le travail des apparences: ou les transformations du corps féminin, XVIIIe–XIXe siècle, Paris, Seuil, 1984.

Documents the transformation of French society through changing notions about how the female body should appear and be represented. Covering the 17th through the 20th centuries, but with a focus on the 18th century. Views the female body as a social, cultural, and historic product. Interesting for its analysis of technological developments (for example, advances in water engineering and the mechanization of cosmetics production techniques), and scientific developments (such as new ideas about diet and hygiene), and their impact on changing notions about dress and the eroticization of the female body.

Contents: (I) Le retour de l'eau; (II) La vérité des masques; (III) La grâce des chairs; (IV) Le chiffre des apparences; (V) La vague hygiéniste; (VI) Le simulacre du naturel; (VII) Le corps immolé.

1st ed., London, Wace, 1964–66; corr. ed., 1972; 2d ed., London, Macmillan, 1977.

Pioneering texts on pattern cutting and garment construction and guide to designing period costumes. Drawing upon letters, magazines, and books of the period, the author gives a brief history of pattern cutting, dressmaking, and tailoring. Studies of individual clothes and undergarments, all illustrated with annotated drawings, focus on details of construction; scaled and annotated patterns are also provided. All pieces used have been dated from contemporary prints, portraits, fabrics, fashion plates, and/or photographs. Reference is made to English and French examples now in British collections, although the emphasis is on dress worn in Great Britain. A final section deals with metric conversions.

Contents: (1) Englishwomen's dresses and their construction c. 1660–1860; (2) Englishwomen's dresses and their construction c. 1860–1940.

List of selected books, in both vols.

P227 Owen-Crocker, Gale R. Dress in Anglo-Saxon England. With line drawings by Christine Wetherell. Wolfboro, N.H., Manchester Univ. Pr., 1986. xi, 241p. il.

Scholarly work that examines most aspects of dress—including textile production—in England from the 5th century to 1066. Female and male dress are treated separately. Costume accessories, especially jewelry and other forms of metalwork, are also covered. Aims to differentiate Anglo-Saxon dress from that of the later Middle Ages, and from medieval dress in the rest of Western Europe. Draws on evidence provided by manuscript illuminations, archeological excavations, and literary sources. Appendix: Old English garment names.

Abbreviations in the notes and the bibliography, p.209. Notes, p.211–25. Bibliography, p.227–34. Index, p.235–41.

P228 Peacock, John. Costume 1066–1966. N.Y., Thames and Hudson, 1986. 128p. il. (chiefly col.)

Chronologically arranged volume documenting changes in male and female dress from 1066. While the starting point is the dress of the kings and queens of England, cross-national connections mean that the trends depicted reflect those of the rest of Europe. Each section represents a reign. A series of briefly annotated drawings by the author illustrate dress and accessory features for the period.

Extremely thorough scholarly study of 18th- and early 19th-century dress, textiles, and their use and re-use in Finland. Following an introductory section placing the country and its fashions in their historical and geopolitical context, the survey comprises a chronological analysis of Finnish fashions from the late baroque to the neo-classical period. Individual chapters also focus on specific accessories, most notably fans, headgear, and footwear. Clothing construction, including that of undergarments, is also examined. The importance of foreign influences forms a significant part of the discussion. With more than 450 illustrations, the majority of which are of 18th-century Finnish portrait paintings, drawings, caricatures, and textile fragments, this is a key reference work documenting textiles and dress in Finland.

P260 ———. Trajes y modas en la España de los Reyes Catolicos. Madrid, Instituto Diego Velazquez, del Consejo Superior de Investigaciones Cientificas, 1978-79. 2v. il. (part col.), plates (Artes y artistas)

The first part of each vol. comprises a discussion of court and aristocratic dress during the second half of the 15th and the first decades of the 16th century. Considerable attention is paid to archival and literary sources. The impact of Arabic, French, and Italian costume on Spanish styles as well as the influence of late 16th-century Spanish court dress on the rest of Europe is examined. The second part of each vol. comprises an extensively annotated catalog of images in which noteworthy examples of Spanish attire are portrayed; paintings, illuminated manuscripts and sculpture are the primary sources.

1st ed., Portuguese costumes: with a description of the manners and usages of the country. London, Colnaghi, 1814.

Full-page colored illustrations of individuals from all stations of religious and secular, urban, pastoral, and regional life in late 18th-early 19th-century Portugal. Each illustration, and the one-two page description that accompanies it, shows one or two representatives of a specific group engaged in activities representative of that group and wearing the dress that distinguishes it. Local characteristics as well as the impact of foreign fashions (particularly on the upper classes) are included in the survey. The descriptions note each group's place in Portuguese society and discuss the special features of the dress its members wear.

P262 A moda em Portugal através da imprensa 1807-1991. Lisboa, Biblioteca Nacional, 1991. 257p. il. (part col.) (Biblioteca Nacional. Catalogo 35)

Extensively illustrated catalog published in conjunction with the exhibition, Biblioteca Nacional, Lisbon (1991), covering 19th- and 20th-century fashionable dress in Portugal, and documenting the library's collections of fashion journals, prints, and engravings from this period. Women's fashionable dress, accessories, and hairstyles are the principal focus of this vol., although men's attire is briefly examined. A brief historical introduction and three essays by different authors describe the trends and influences operating in Portugal following the introduction of that country's first fashion journal, the Correio das modas, in 1807. Followed by several sections containing articles reproduced from fashion journals of the period (primarily 1807-1929). The catalog that follows also serves as a guide to the fashion prints and literature available for this period.

United States

P263 Copeland, Peter F. Working dress in Colonial and Revolutionary America. Westport, Greenwood, [1977]. xv, 223p. il., ports. (Contributions in American history, 58)

Covers the century 1710-1810, when mass-produced clothing was not yet available. Although evidence regarding the dress of wealthier Americans has survived for this period, few sources indicate what members of the working classes wore. Following an introduction to the topic, subsequent chapters investigate the dress of specific categories of worker; much of the clothing is inferred by reference to European sources. Elements of the textile and clothing trade are also discussed.

Contents: (1) Seafarers and fishermen; (2) Farmers and rural workers; (3) Craftsmen and urban workers; (4) Tradesmen and peddlers; (5) Frontiersmen and pioneers; (6) Transportation workers; (7) Public servants; (8) Soldiers and militia men; (9) Professionals; (10) House servants; (11) Indentured servants and slaves; (12) Criminals; (13) National groupings.

- P273 Severa, Joan L. Dressed for the photographer: ordinary Americans and fashion, 1840-1900. Kent, Kent State Univ. Pr., 1995. xxii, 592p. il.

Explores "the problem of how ordinary Americans [of the 19th century] handled the often conflicting dictates of fashion, hard work and economy in their clothing choices."—Pref. The interrelationship between the history of portrait photography and the history of dress forms an integral part of the discussion. Each chapter considers a decade and comprises an introductory essay followed by approximately 30-50 extensively annotated photographs. Focus is on women's dress, since greater evidence has survived in this category; but men's and children's attire are also considered where photographs exist. Where available, photographs of people from different ethnic backgrounds are also discussed.

- P274 Worrell, Estelle Ansley. Children's costume in America 1607-1910. N.Y., Scribner, 1980. 216p. il. (part col.), 8 col. plates.

Based on the premise that studying children's costume can provide insights into a society's attitude towards its young. The focus is on children's clothes of the upper and middle classes, and the organization is chronological. The author also discusses the impact of foreign fashions, sports, and new technologies (such as the invention of rubber and synthetic fabrics) in the area of children's dress and accessories. Line drawings by the author comprise the vol.'s visual repertoire.

riod Japan. Los Angeles, Los Angeles County Museum of Art; N.Y., Weatherhill, 1992. 351p. il. (part col.), map.

Catalog of the exhibition, Los Angeles County Museum of Art (1992-93).

The kosode, a garment similar to the modern kimono, was worn by both men and women during the Edo period in Japan and remains an evocative symbol of traditional cultural values. This catalog, through essays by both Japanese and American scholars, analyzes the aesthetic and cultural context of the kosode making this work not simply a book about Japanese clothing but truly a work concerning Japanese art and culture. An appendix provides a quick visual record of the changes in the placement of design motifs on kosode from the 16th-19th centuries.

An introductory survey written by a French dealer. Organized in three parts: Chinese furniture before the Ming dynasty; the art of living in China; and Chinese furniture from the Ming period (1368–1644) to the 19th century. Includes lacquer furnishings from temples, palaces, and aristocratic houses as well as hardwood furniture.

Winning bids at public sales in Paris, London, and New York, p.187–89. Glossary [with Chinese characters], p.190–95. Dynasty marks, p.196. Bibliography, p.197–98.

P398 Clunas, Craig. Chinese furniture. Photography by Ian Thomas. London, Bamboo, 1988. 119p. il. (part col.) (Far Eastern series)

Using examples from the Victoria and Albert Museum's collection, this book emphasizes how Chinese furniture was used to convey social status and taste. "The reader will therefore find less about the timbers and types of joints involved in the manufacture of furniture . . . than about what type of object could acceptably stand where at what periods."—Introd.

Includes sections on seat furniture, tables and platforms, the Chinese cabinetmaker's tools, and traditional Chinese furniture in the modern world. Extensive footnotes with references to literary sources as well as to articles on art.

P399 Ecke, Gustav. Chinese domestic furniture in photographs and measured drawings. [Reprint.] N.Y., Dover, 1986. lx, 161p. il.

Trans. of Ming shu jiaju zhen shang. Beijing, Wen wu ch'u pan she; Hsin hua shu tien Pei-ching fa hsing so fa hsing; Hong Kong, San lian shu tien Hsiang-kang fen tien, 1985.

A study of the materials, methods of construction, types of pieces and variations in style of Chinese furniture by an author who devoted more than 40 years of intense research to the subject and who is recognized as China's foremost furniture historian. The English text provides a description of the historical evolution of the main types of hardwood furniture, illustrated by examples from Chinese collections never before documented. Noteworthy for the range of domestic furniture included, e.g., stools, chairs, tables, beds, shelves, cabinets, and for the detail drawings that show the structural integrity of the joinery. The definitive reference work on the subject.

Bibliography, p.322–23.

P402 ———. Connoisseurship of Chinese furniture: Ming and early Qing dynasties. Trans. by Wang Shixiang, Lark E. Mason, Jr., and others. Illustrated by Yuan Quanyu. [Chicago], Art Media Resources, 1990. 2v. il., plates.

Trans. of Ming shi jiaju yanjiu. Hong Kong, Joint Publishing, 1989.

Divided into text and plate vols., this set is the standard reference tool for the study of Chinese furniture. The author is renowned for his research that included visiting master cabinet-makers, photographing, collecting, and drawing furniture in private collections, and taking apart pieces in his own collection to understand the construction. In addition to the introductory chapter on Ming and early Qing furniture, the author discusses the types and forms of furniture, construction and joinery, decoration, materials, and problems of dating and alterations. Includes a glossary of terms providing a clear and precise language for describing the objects.

Introductory essay in English and French.

The essay, by the former Keeper at the Victoria and Albert Museum, provides both a history of this portion of the Alfred Baur collection and a general introduction to Japanese ceramics. The bulk of the book is a catalog of the 133 items in the collection, mainly an assemblage of wares dating from the 17th–19th centuries. Each piece is photographed, described, and often compared to pieces in other collections.

- P567 Cort, Louise Allison. Seto and Mino ceramics. Washington, D.C., Freer Gallery of Art, Smithsonian Institution, 1992. 254p. il., col. plates, maps. (Japanese collections in the Freer Gallery of Art)

An introductory essay on the ceramic centers of Seto and Mino and the collecting practices of the Freer Collection is followed by the catalog of 126 pieces from the Freer. The catalog is arranged chronologically, with works ranging from the 7th century through the Meiji period. Each piece is illustrated, and the accompanying text describes the ware, the clay body, glaze, and decoration.

- P568 Famous ceramics of Japan. Tokyo, Kodansha, 1981–84. 12v. il. col. plates, maps.

Issued originally in Japanese as the series Nihon no Yaki-mono, conceived by the ceramic historian and potter Koyama Fujimio (1900–1975), and published in 26 vols. by Kodansha between 1975–77.

The English-language version consists of tall, slender volumes, each treating a ceramic center in Japan describing the history and characteristics, the kilns, distinctive glazes, and decorations. Each tome consists of a short introductory text, an abundance of colored plates, plate notes, and maps.

Contents: (1) Imaizumi, Motosuke. Nabeshima (1981); (2) Kozuru, Gen. Agano and Takatori (1981); (3–4) Mizuo, Hiroshi. Folk kilns (1981); (5) Nagatake, Takeshi. Kakiemon (1981); (6) Nagatake, Takeshi. Imari (1982); (7) Sawada, Yoshihary. Tokoname (1982); (8) Murayama, Takeshi. Oribe (1982); (9) Nakazato, Taroemon. Karatsu (1983); (10) Furukawa, Shosaku. Kiseo and Setoguro (1983); (11) Kawano, Ryosuke. Hagi (1983); (12) Kuroda, Ryoji. Shino (1984).

- P569 Jenyns, Soame. Japanese porcelain. London, Faber and Faber, 1965. xiii, 351p. plates, map (Faber monographs on pottery and porcelain) (Repr.: 1979).

"First full-length study of the subject in English."—Foreword.

Now the standard study for the topic. Describes the various porcelain types, the export trade, and the influence of Chinese porcelain. Plates are grouped together at the end of the text.

Bibliography, p. 321–23.

- P570 Kenrick, Douglas. Jomon of Japan: the world's oldest pottery. Routledge, Chapman and Hall, 1995. xviii, 144p., il. (part col.), maps.

Using carbon-14 methods, Jomon pottery has been dated from 10,000 to 300 B.C. thus justifying the subtitle of this book. After an initial discussion of scientific dating and the phases of the Jomon period, the text describes pottery techniques, styles, and decoration. Nicely illustrated.

End notes, p.64–71. Bibliography, 72–74. Index, p.142–44.

- P571 Klein, Adalbert. A connoisseur's guide to Japanese ceramics. Trans. by Katherine Watson. London, Alpine Fine Arts Collection, [1987]. 275p. il. (part col.), maps.

Trans. of Japanische Keramik von der Jomon-Zeit bis zur Gegenwart. Fribourg, Office du Livre, 1984.

Traces the history of Japanese ceramics from Jomon culture (5th millennium B.C.) to the 20th century along with chapters on tea ceremony vessels, legends, style, and techniques. Includes earthenware, stoneware, and porcelain by potters, sculptors, and designers.

Notes, p.251–56. Selected bibliography, p.257–60. Chronological table, p.261. Names and dates of reigning emperors starting in 1501, p.262. Marks, p.262. Glossary, p.263–64. Index, p.271–74.

P572 Wilson, Richard L. Inside Japanese ceramics: a primer of materials, techniques and traditions. N.Y., Weatherhill, 1995. 190p. il. (part col.), plates, map. Intended to span the gap between historical and ethnographical accounts of Japanese ceramics, this book provides an English-language introduction to the tools, materials, and techniques of Japanese ceramics. Photographs detail step-by-step processes.

Contents: Of craft and life; Setting up; Forming; Decoration; Glazes; Kilns and firing; Five traditional approaches; Japanese methods and western potters.

TEXTILES

Bibliography

P774 Bibliography. Published in Textile Society of America newsletter, v.8, no.2, summer 1995-. Washington, D.C., The Textile Museum, 1995-.

"This bibliographic issue of the Textile Society of America Newsletter is a joint endeavor of the Society and the Textile Museum in Washington, D.C. The citations include new titles catalogued in the Arthur D. Jenkins Library of the Museum as well as late arrivals. . . . The compilation and editing of the bibliography is the work of Mary Mallia Samms, Librarian at the Textile Museum."—Introd. The annual listing now takes up the greater part of each summer issue of the TSA newsletter.

Covers articles and books, reflecting the textile collections of the Textile Museum itself: primarily the history and techniques of ancient and ethnographic textiles and rugs. Within that scope, textiles, dress, embroidery, weaving, tapestries, rugs, and designers are covered.

P775 Bibliographica textilia historiae: towards a general bibliography on the history of textiles. Based on the Library and Archives of the Center for Social Research on Old Textiles [CSROT]. Over 5,000 works published since the fifteenth century on textiles as art, craft, technology, industry and commerce. Including archaeological, ethnographic, religious (Islamic, Christian, Buddhist), secular, decorative, folk textile—Asia, Europe, the Americas, Oceania, Africa—prehistoric, ancient, medieval, Renaissance, Baroque, rococo—woven silk, wool, linen, cotton, velvet, printed textiles, embroidery, lace, carpets, dyeing, tapestry, costume, and related subjects. Most with collations; many with descriptions; some with illustrations. . . . Ed. by Seth Siegelaub. N.Y., International General, 1997. 415p. il.

Seeks to situate the history of textiles "within the broader history of economic, social and cultural life, work and technological change."—Introd. More comprehensive than might be expected from a bibliography focusing on the subject of textiles. Coverage is similarly broad in terms of textile type, textile and fiber technology, geographic region, historical period, and dates of publication (1468–late 20th century). Drawn primarily from the research collections of the Center for Social Research on Old Textiles, now housed in Amsterdam. Ca. 5,000 alphabetically arranged author-title entries, approximately 3,000 of which are accompanied by annotations of varying length and detail. The subject-oriented listing is considerably shorter.

Contents: (I) Introduction: notes towards a critical history of the literature of textiles; (II) Bibliographica textilia historiae: the alphabetical author-title entries; (III) Basic works on the history of textiles; a classification by subject and country; (IV) Appendix: abbreviations, bibliographic references, addenda.

Abbreviations, p.411. Bibliographic references frequently cited, p.412. Addenda [additional works or information acquired during the course of the final preparation of this work], p.413–15.

P776 Bibliographie. [Comp. by Monique King] Published in Bulletin du CIETA. Nr. 2, 1955–. Lyons (France), Centre International d'Étude des Textiles Anciens, 1955–.

Variant titles: Bulletin du Centre International d'Étude des Textiles Anciens; Bulletin de Liaison du Centre International d'Étude des Textiles Anciens.

Annual publication covering books and periodical articles on all aspects of the history and conservation of historic textiles and dress. Major reference tool. All entries receive a full bibliographic citation, plus a brief annotation. The first bibliographical compilation was prepared by Edith Standen.

Contents: Afrique, Amérique/Africa, America; Broderie/Embroidery; Commerce, Industrie, Techniques/Trade, Industry, Techniques; Costume et mode/Costume and fashion; Dentelles imprimés, Tricot/lace, printed textiles, knitting; Divers/Various; Moyen-Orient, Extrême-Orient/Middle East, Far East; Musées et collections/Museums and collections; Tapis, tapisseries/Carpets, tapestries; Tissus tissés/Woven textiles.

Directories

P781 Directory of textile collections in the United States and Canada. [Comp. by the Handweavers Guild of America Textile Collections Committee . . . (et al.)] [Ed. by Jenna Tedrick Kuttruff.] [Bloomfield, Conn.], Handweavers Guild of America, 1991. 70p.

Alphabetical listing by state/province, then by city, of approximately 500 collections housing textiles. Each collection receives a brief description of the textiles collected.

- P782 The network: an international directory of textile scholars. [Salem, Mass.], Textile Society of America, 1991. 85p.

Alphabetical listing. Each scholar's research interests are described.

Contents: East and Central Asia; Southeast Asia; South Asia; West Asia and North Africa; Europe; SubSaharan Africa; North America; Mesoamerica; South America; Oceania; General; Weaving methods, tools and equipment; Non-woven methods, tools and equipment; Color; Stitchery; Fibers; Clothing and accessories; Interiors; Graphics; Meanings of textiles; Political economy of textiles.

- P783 Textile, costume and doll collections: in the United States and Canada. Ed. by Pieter Bach. Lopez, Wash., R.L. Shep, 1981. 69p. il.

Divided into three sections (textiles, costume and dolls), arranged alphabetically by state and city. For museums with all three types of collection, the entry is repeated. Numerous smaller, less well-known collections are included. Descriptions of collections' contents are provided.

SEE ALSO: Quilt collections: a directory for the United States and Canada (GLAH 2:P912).

Dictionaries and Encyclopedias

- P784 Burnham, Dorothy K. Warp and weft: a dictionary of textile terms. Adapted and exp. from the Vocabulary of technical terms, 1964, with permission of the Centre International d'Étude des Textiles Anciens. Diagrams by Dorothy K. Burnham. N.Y., Scribner, 1981. xiv, 216p. il.

Building on the multi-lingual textile glossaries produced under the auspices of CIETA, the Centre International d'Étude des Textiles Anciens (see GLAH 2:P785), organized according to weave characteristics. For most of the approximately 550 English-language entries, corresponding weaving terms in French, German, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish, and Swedish are provided. Especially strong in its definitions of silks and silk weaving techniques. Its many diagrams and photographs facilitate identification and comparison.

Table of weaves, p.193-98. Specialized French terms, p.199-201. Notes, p.203-07. Literature cited, p.209-16.

- P785 Centre Internationale d'Étude des Textiles Anciens. Fabrics: a vocabulary of technical terms: English, French, Italian, Spanish. 2d ed. Lyons, France, C.I.E.T.A., [1964]. v, 62p.

1st. ed., in English, French and Italian, 1959; German ed., Vokabular der Textiltechniken deutsch: englisch, französisch, italienisch, spanisch, schwedische = Terminologie textile en lange allemande, tissu: allemande, anglaise, franz., ital., espagn., suédois, Lyons, CIETA, 1971; Scandinavian ed., Nordisk textilteknisk terminologi, Oslo, Tanum, 1974.

The origins of this vocabulary lie in the decision to compile an inventory of surviving ancient textiles throughout the world. In order to do this an internationally recognized vocabulary for the standard description of these textiles was needed. This multi-lingual vocabulary was carried out under the auspices of CIETA; all involved were leading textile scholars in their respective fields.

The 1964 vocabulary is an English-based listing. That is, terms are listed in English, with French, Italian, and Spanish equivalent terms listed below. An English-language definition of that term is provided.

Addenda, p.60-62.

- P786 Cyrus-Zetterström, Ulla. Textile terminology: Chinese - English - French - Swedish = Terminologie textile: Chinois - Anglais - Français - Suédois = Textil terminologi: Kinesisk - Engelsk - Fransk - Svensk. The Chinese text is written in collab. with Associate Professor Xu Guoha, Vice Director of Nantong Textile Museum. Borås, Centraltryckeriet Ake Svenson AB, 1995. 119p. il. (part col.)

"This terminology is intended as an aid to textile researchers and translators in China and in the Western countries, and aims to further the exchange of ideas about old textiles in both the East and the West."—Pref. Covers terms for pre-industrial woven fabrics, textile fibers, textile-related tools, and resist-dyed fabrics. 383 terms are provided under 277 headings. English, French, and Swedish terms are also given where equivalents exist. Color plates, magnified black-and-white photographs, and diagrams.

Measure words, p.102-03. Chronology, p.104-06. Chinese index, p.107-11. English index, p.112-14. French index, p.115-16. Swedish index, p.117.

- P787 Emery, Irene. The primary structures of fabrics: an illustrated classification. [Rev. ed.] N.Y., Watson-Guptill/Whitney Library of Design; Washington, D.C., Textile Museum, 1994. xxvi, 339p. il.

1st ed., Washington, D.C., Textile Museum, 1966.

Pioneering study providing a "detailed and systematic investigation of the essential characteristics of ancient and primitive fabrics."—Foreword. Laid the groundwork for establishing a consistently used English-language vocabulary and resolving confusion over the appropriate terms needed to describe textiles and their structures. Terms and definitions are mostly accompanied by diagrams of weave structures to aid terminological identification.

Contents: (1) Components of fabric structures; (2) Classification of the structures of fabrics; (3) Structures accessory to fabrics.

Sources of information [not updated in the new ed.], p.259-308. Index, p.309-39.

- P788 Encyclopedia of textiles: an illustrated and authoritative source book on textiles, presenting a complete and practical coverage of the entire field—its history and origins, its art and design, its natural and man-made fibers, its manufacturing and finishing processes, color and dyes, textile printing, specialty end uses; plus a comprehensive dictionary of textile terms. By the editors of American fabrics and fashions magazine. 3d ed. Englewood Cliffs, Prentice-Hall, 1980. 636p. il. ports.

1st ed., AF Encyclopedia of textiles, 1960; 2d ed., 1972.

Comprehensive encyclopedia of all categories of woven and nonwoven textiles, fibers, textile technology and textile history. Especially useful for its documentation of the increasingly rapid development of textile fiber and production technologies, particularly since 1945. The many diagrams and photographs are especially interesting for their illustration of textile manufacturing processes, and of manmade fibers.

Contents: Manmade fibers; Cotton; Wool; Specialty fibers; Silk; Bast and other plant fibers; Chronological history; Inventors and their inventions; Origins of fabric names; Masterpieces of textile design; Peruvian textiles; Textiles in the New World; Spinning; Weaving; Knitting; Lace-making; Ribbon-making; Nonwoven fabrics & felts; The finishing processes; Color and the human being; Dyes and dyeing processes; Printing of textiles; Curtains & draperies; Sheets & quilts; Rugs & carpets; Industrial fabrics.

Beautifully illustrated volume comprising a considerable amount of in-depth research into the history, manufacture, and function of hundreds of textile types. An extremely comprehensive dictionary comprises the greater part of this volume, preceded by several scholarly essays. The excellent illustrations include dress items, textiles and textile designs, weave and fiber twist diagrams, history and genre paintings, and fashion photographs showing specific fabric types in use; sample and pattern books are also illustrated.

Contents: Ou chercher les noms d'étoffes?; Noms d'étoffes; Un guide pour explorer le Dictionnaire historique des étoffes; Choix et conventions du dictionnaire.

P794 Seiler-Baldinger, Annemarie. Textiles: a classification of techniques. Washington, D.C., Smithsonian Institution Pr., 1994. xvi, 256p. il. (part col.)

Trans. of "Systematik der textilen Techniken," in Basler Beiträge zur Ethnologie, v. 32, 1991.

Based on the pioneering work by Kristen and Alfred Buhler-Oppenheim, Grundlagen zur Systematik der gesamten textilen Techniken (Denkschriften der Schweizerischen naturforschenden Gesellschaft, v.LXXXVIII, Pt.2, Zurich, 1948). Extremely thorough basic reference work. Focuses on a classification of textile terminology for textile production processes and techniques, rather than on the resultant textile structures. Clearly formulated diagrams provide visual explanations to the terms discussed, and excellent color photographs (mostly of ethnographic objects) show some of the more distinctive results of specific weave types. Alternative vocabulary for each term is also provided, in English and other languages.

Contents: The techniques of element production; The techniques of fabric production; The techniques of fabric ornamentation.; The techniques of fabric processing (joining of fabrics); Appendix: Structures and possible ways of production and identification.

References, p.156-72. Bibliography, p.173-236; Index [English, French, German, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish, and Scandinavian languages], p.237-56.

P798 Blum, Dilys E. The fine art of textiles: the collections of the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Color photography by Lynn Rosenthal. Philadelphia, Philadelphia Museum of Art, 1997. 208p. il. (chiefly col.)

Documents the history and range of the Philadelphia Museum's textile collections, reproducing approximately 400 pieces. Organized geographically, then by textile type. Tapestries and carpets are excluded from the survey.

Contents: Europe and the Americas; The Mediterranean and Middle East; India; Southeast Asia; China; Japan; Twentieth-century international design.

Glossary, p.204-06. Bibliography, p.207-08.

P799 Collezione Antonio Ratti. [various imprints], 1992- . (6)v. il. (chiefly col.)

Catalogs of the Antonio Ratti textile collection (Como, Italy) comprising approximately 3,000 individual pieces and 1,550 sample books. Individual vols. are published in English and Italian in limited editions, and document specific sections of the collection. All are magnificently illustrated, including many large photographs showing details of pattern and weave structure. One or more descriptive essays are followed by a catalog of relevant items in the collection.

Contents: (1) Buss, Chiara. Silk gold and silver: eighteenth century textiles (Milano, Fabbri, 1992); (2) Qibti: the Coptic textiles of the Antonio Ratti collection, ed. by Anna Maria Donadoni Roveri. Introductory and scientific texts by Franca Angonoa Gilardi ([Milano], Fabbri, 1992); (3) Peter, Irmgard. Cravattes ([Como], Ratti, 1994); (4) Levi-Strauss, Monique. Il cachmire: Indian and European shawls ([Como], Ratti, 1995); (5) Buss, Chiara. Velvets ([Como], Ratti, 1996); (6) Silk and colour, ed. by Chiara Buss (Milano, Grafiche Mazzucchelli, 1997).

Glossaries and bibliographical references are provided for all vols.

P800 Devoti, Donata. Il tessuto in Europa. Milano, Bramante, 1993. [Rev. ed.] 271p. il. (part col.) (Arti e tecniche)

1st ed., L'arte del tessuto in Europa, 1974.

Important scholarly survey focusing on the history of textiles in Western Europe. Organized chronologically, the survey ranges from the 11th to the 20th century. A catalog comprising 240 items makes up the second part of the text. Each item is illustrated with a large color reproduction, accompanied by a detailed catalog entry. The numerous illustrations include diagrams of weave/pattern structures.

P803 King, Monique, and King, Donald. European textiles in the Keir collection: 400 BC to 1800 AD. Boston, Faber, 1990. vi, 311p. il. (part col.) (Keir collection, 6)

Documents a vast textile collection assembled by Edmund de Unger. "A selection of the most interesting and representative pieces, illustrating the evolution of design and technique in European textiles from antiquity to the eighteenth century."—Introd. The range of the Keir collections is so comprehensive that the catalog can serve as a general history of textiles. Arranged chronologically, each chapter begins with an introductory essay discussing the predominant styles and techniques of the period, followed by detailed catalog entries. Italian textiles are strongly represented, with French and Spanish also figuring prominently. Some Northern European textiles, as well as a few Asian and North African textiles, are included here for comparative purposes.

Glossary, p.295–300. Appendix: Museums with textile collections referred to in the catalogue, p.301. Bibliographical references, p.303–05. Index, p.307–11.

Ancient

P813 Barber, E. J. W. Prehistoric textiles: the development of cloth in the Neolithic and Bronze Ages: with special reference to the Aegean. [Princeton], Princeton Univ. Pr., [1991]. xxix, 471p. il. (part col.), 4p. of plates, maps.

Pioneering work reviewing the information provided by archaeological textiles and textile fragments within the context of paleobiological and linguistic studies, and discussing the ways this information can be used to draw conclusions about prehistoric societies, for example, to provide evidence for cross-cultural connections. Wide-ranging geographically and chronologically. Detailed technical analyses are provided, and the function and significance of weaving by women is also discussed.

- P853 Fils renoués: trésors textiles du moyen âge en Languedoc-Roussillon. Carcassonne, [France], Musée des Beaux-Arts de Carcassonne, [1993]. 166p. il. (part col.)

Catalog published in conjunction with the exhibition, Musée des Beaux-Arts de Carcassonne (1993). Most of the textiles and items of clothing discussed originated in countries of the Mediterranean basin (Egypt, Sicily, Spain), and their survival is due primarily to their association with the cult of relics. Relevant archival documents are also discussed. All items are illustrated with full-page color photographs, as well as color enlargements of details. Diagrams of weave structures and black-and-white photographs of fiber fragments also accompany detailed texts analyzing and describing the pieces.

Studies a group of hangings from the churches of Skog and Överhogdal, both located in Sweden. The various weaving techniques used for Scandinavian wall hangings are an important feature of the volume, and the differences in technique between the earlier (pre-1300) and later (1300–1500) medieval periods are described. Explores geographic distribution, regional variations in terminology, and iconography in relationship to Nordic mythology and history. Literary and archival sources are also discussed in the attempt to determine these textiles' functions.

Lavishly illustrated "catalogue of images on printed cloth."—Pref. Most of the designs are taken from the Design Library and the Design Loft, a collection begun in 1972 by Susan and Herbert Meller. Designs from 19th- and early 20th-century swatch and pattern books are among the patterns presented. The focus is on textiles used in everyday life rather than the more high fashion textiles that tend to feature in museum collections.

Organization based on the collection's in-house classification system, by motif rather than by date or geographical origin. Each section comprises a variety of patterns and designs (some full-page), together with a brief introductory text. All illustrations are briefly annotated, and for most examples dates and country of origin are identified.

Spain and Portugal

P908 Herrero Carretero, Concha. Museo de Telas Medievales, Monasterio de Santa María la Real de Huelgas. Madrid, Patrimonio Nacional, [1988]. 134p. il. (chiefly col.)

Founded at Burgos in 1187 by Alfonso VIII of Castile and his wife Eleonora of England, the Monasterio de Santa María la Real de Huelgas subsequently functioned as a pantheon of the Castilian royal family. This vol. provides a catalog of the mortuary textiles and garments in or with which members of the royal family were buried. These date primarily from the 12th and 13th centuries and range in origin from Sassanian to African and Coptic. Amply accompanied by detailed photographs, the catalog entries are preceded by an introductory essay in which manuscript illuminations are also discussed for comparative purposes.

In-depth, historical survey of the silk industry in Valencia during the 15th century, using notary documents, regulations of the silk workers' associations, as well as personal papers and inventories. The illustrations primarily show silk-working tools and some of the buildings constructed by the silk workers.

United States

Bibliography

P911 Gordon, Beverly. Domestic American textiles: a bibliographic sourcebook. Ambridge, Center for the History of American Needlework, 1978. 217p.

Annotated bibliography of "those fiber constructions that were (and are) made in the North American home for personal and decorative use. It does not refer to the textiles of the native Americans." Also generally excluded are printed textiles, costume, and basketry. Publications up to 1977 are listed: 574 books and articles, and 70 catalogs.

Index, p.161–76.

Directories

P912 Quilt collections: a directory for the United States and Canada. Comp. by Lisa Turner Oshins. With state commentaries by Barbara S. Bockman. Washington, D.C., Acropolis Books, 1987. 255p. il. (part col.), ports.

Directory based on a survey conducted by the American Folklife Center (1985–87), designed to locate and describe public quilt-resource collections in N. America; more than 25,000 quilts were documented. The directory provides listings of where these quilts can be seen and studied, and lists the locations of other resources (patterns and instructions, diaries, journals, letters, oral histories, photographs, illustrations, paintings, advertisements, and film).

The listing is divided between the U.S. and Canada. Each country is subdivided by state (U.S.) or province (Canada), prefaced by a brief quilt-related commentary for the region. Many of the photographs of quilts in use are taken from the Farm Security Administration Collection, housed at the Library of Congress.

Asian Countries

General Works

- P928 Pattern and loom; a practical study of the development of weaving techniques in China, Western Asia and Europe. By John Becker. With the collab. of Donald B. Wagner. Copenhagen, Rhodos, [1987]. Text and suppl. 316p. il. (part col.); suppl. 80p. il. (part col.)

"The book has two objectives: 1) A detailed practical account of the weaving of preserved ancient textiles and a technical classification of the main types. This will be of importance for textile scholars and textile conservators. 2) An inspiration for students and weavers today, who will be able to find new possibilities from practical descriptions of older techniques."—Pref.

The culmination of 20 years of weaving experiments by John Becker at his textile workshop in Denmark, this book is mainly for the advanced professional weaver and the knowledgeable textile historian or conservator. The five sections of the book are concerned with the patterned weaves of Han China, early western Asia, the Mediterranean regions, and Tang China, and weaving implements. Each chapter within a section reviews the surviving textile material, quotes the literature, and provides some brief historical information. The work serves as a handbook of ancient weaving with a rich body of illustrations.

United States

P989 Lynn, Catherine M. Wallpaper in America from the seventeenth century to World War I. With a foreword by Charles van Ravenswaay. N.Y., Norton, [1980]. 533p. il. (part col.), ports. (A Barra Foundation/Cooper-Hewitt Museum book)

The standard work on wallpaper made, or imported for use, in America. Basing her work on the extensive collections of the Cooper-Hewitt Museum and other institutions and historic houses, the author discusses the papers themselves, their use, and their social and cultural context. An essential resource for the study of the American interior.

Colors commonly used in eighteenth- and early nineteenth-century wallpaper manufacture, p.[485]–86. Checklist of American manufacturers in business before 1845, p.[487]–89. Wallpaper reference collections, p.[490]. Sources, p.[491]. Index, p.[518]–32.

P990 Nylander, Richard; Redmond, Elizabeth; and Penny J. Sander. Wallpaper in New England: selections from the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities. With essays by Abbott Lowell Cummings and Karen A. Guffey. Boston, Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, 1986. ix, 283p. il. (part col.)

Catalog of a notable and extensive collection of wallpapers, the majority of which are documented to specific buildings, and range from mid-18th century English imports to reproduction papers of the 20th century. In addition to the papers themselves, illustrations include invoices, trade cards, and period photographs of papered interiors. Because of the scope of the collection, this vol. can serve as a widely useful general resource for paper history.

Contents: Part one: Essays: (I) The use and manufacture of wallpaper in New England, 1700–1820, by Abbott Lowell Cummings; (II) From paper stainer to manufacturer: J.F. Bumstead and Co., manufacturers and importers of paper hangings, by Karen A. Guffey; Part two: Catalogue.

ton, D.C.], Preservation Pr., [1992]. 263p. il. (part col.)
1st ed., 1983.

While the primary purpose of this handbook is to guide curators and owners of historic houses in the selection of appropriate reproduction wallpapers, the concise and informed discussions of each period's typical paper designs are valuable for any researcher needing such information in summary form. Includes extensive and specific information on papers currently available.

Contents: (1) 1700 to 1780: The English influence; (2) 1840 to 1870: Revival styles and machine printing; (3) 1870 to 1910: Stylized designs for the late Victorian era.

Suppliers, p.251-53. Glossary, p.254-55. Bibliography, p.256-61. Sources of information, p.262-63.

Q. Periodicals

This chapter presents a wide variety of significant new and established art periodicals. Periodicals are defined as numbered and regularly issued publications, unique in their frequency, appearance, and contents. Series, even those that are issued regularly, are dealt with in the next chapter.

Periodicals have been chosen based on their scholarly content, lasting research value, availability, use of summaries or abstracts in English or other romance language (for foreign publications), and incorporation in the major periodical indexes. Subjects include art, architecture, photography, design, decorative arts, and, to some extent, archeology. Coverage is international in scope. Interdisciplinary and historical journals are included when their coverage of art is considered substantial. While most journals began publication sometime between 1977 (the cutoff date of GLAH 1) and 1997, several older periodical titles not in GLAH 1 have been included if they were determined to be particularly noteworthy.

The beginning of this chapter ("Part 1") includes those GLAH 1 titles that ceased publication or continued under a new title. GLAH 1 titles that either began a new series, underwent a change in publisher, or were suspended for any length of time, have been given a new entry in GLAH 2, and are referenced in Part 1 under the old title. An effort was made to cite only the most recent information regarding title, place of publication, publisher, and distributor in the periodical entries. Information about internet availability is selective, and does not include addresses.

Local and regional art journals, art, design, and architecture school journals, as well as conservation-related periodicals are selectively covered. Museum publications are also judiciously included and incorporate only those that began publication after 1977. Mention should be made of two excellent bibliographical sources for serials that round out many of the areas only selectively dealt with here: Doris Robinson, Fine arts periodicals: an international directory of the visual arts (N.Y., Peri Pr., 1991) and Frances Gretes' Directory of international periodicals and newsletters on the built environment (2d ed., N.Y., Van Nostrand Reinhold, 1992).

Omitted from this list are: most professional publications, society newsletters, art newspapers, magazines for hobbyists, technical journals, as well as fashion, art education, art therapy and other subjects peripheral to the study of art history.

Cumulative table of contents of issues in back of each issue. Arch.per.ind.; Avery.

R. Series

This chapter concerns series, that is, monographic titles issuing from the same publisher and related to each other either in subject matter or theme and having, in addition to their own individual title, a uniform title related to the group as a whole. The series titles included in this chapter were chosen with the art research library in mind, but make no pretense of being comprehensive.

Subjects covered are similar to Chapter Q, Periodicals, and include: art, architecture, photography, design, decorative arts, and archeology. Series were chosen without limitation as to country, time period, or language, the main criteria for inclusion being scholarship and lasting research value. Reprint series are included. While the majority of the series included herewith began after 1977 (the cut-off date of GLAH 1), as with the Periodicals chapter, those pre-1977 series not included in GLAH 1 which were considered especially noteworthy have been included. The editorial decision has been made not to repeat series titles that appeared in GLAH 1, either to record new volumes or to make any other updates. The scale of this chapter precluded this.

Excluded from this chapter are series that are tightly coordinated in terms of subject or artistic medium. For example, series focusing upon a particular medium (architecture, photography, sculpture) may be found under the appropriate particular subject chapters. Also excluded from this chapter are those series of an encyclopedic nature, covering a span of time and issued in a systematic fashion; these series titles can be found elsewhere in GLAH 2 under their appropriate subject, especially in Chapter I, Histories and Handbooks. Exceptions to this are series covering subjects that have no designated chapters in GLAH 2 (i.e., Islamic art, archeology, modern art). Exhibition and collection series published by museums and art galleries are selectively included. Many monographs cited in this chapter are also listed individually elsewhere in this book.

With some exceptions (clearly indicated in the text), all monographic titles within a given series are listed below their common series title. In this respect we have deviated from GLAH 1, which recorded only representative monographic titles appearing in series, and in the interest of legibility we have departed in this chapter from some of the stylistic norms employed elsewhere in this volume. Selective contents are listed, however, where the scope of the series goes beyond the history of art; in such instances, only volumes treating art historical topics are listed here. In those instances when a numbered volume could not be verified, that number was eliminated from the sequence of numbered titles. Series that began numbering their volumes and then dropped this device with subsequent volumes will have their numbered titles listed first followed by the unnumbered volumes, with the latter in publication year order. Numbered titles that belong together but are numerically apart have been listed together for economy sake [e.g.: (17, 35) William Lloyd MacDonald, The architecture of the Roman Empire, rev. ed. 2v., 1982–86 (Yale studies in the history of art)].

R1 Acta humaniora: Schriften zur Kunstwissenschaft. Berlin, Akademie, 1989–.

S. Patronage and Collecting

Literature examining the history and critical context of art patronage and collecting has increased dramatically during the last twenty years. Together with studies addressing the history and social role of museums, these investigations comprise an area not specifically represented in GLAH 1. Titles selected for inclusion here favor recent publications with sound research apparatus such as bibliographies, notes, indices, and chronologies as well as substantial bibliographic coverage of important works published before 1900. Inventories of collections have been excluded, except where they appear together with substantial historical surveys and analysis. Studies on single individuals, courts, or cities have been limited to topics of major importance. Works on practical museology and contemporary issues of governmental support for the arts have been excluded.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

- S1 Art and the development of taste, collecting & connoisseurship. Introd. by Charles Ryskamp. N.Y., Ursus Rare Books, [1993?]. 1v. (unpaginated), il.

Catalog compiled by Ursus Books to accompany an exhibition and sale held to benefit the Frick Collection. The catalog contains chiefly books as well as some prints and drawings documenting "the evolution of taste and connoisseurship in the formation of European and American collections, both public and private."—Introd. The first section contains 238 fully annotated entries for rare and historic materials; the second section contains 515 briefly annotated entries for reference works covering a wide range of topics concerning the history of collecting, collections, and connoisseurship.

- S2 From Wunderkammer to museum. Oxford, Diana Parikian in assoc. with Bernard Quaritch, 1984. 82p. Fully annotated antiquarian book catalog including an introductory essay and 75 entries for works focusing on the early "cabinet of curiosities" published from the 16th to 19th centuries. Entries contain references to modern publications. Numerous early collection catalogs are included.

Index of authors, compilers of catalogues, and owners of collections, p.82

- S3 Gardner, Elizabeth E. A bibliographical repertory of Italian private collections. Ed. by Chiara Ceschi with the assist. of Katharine Baetjer. Vicenza, Neri Pozza, 1998-. (1)v.

First volume of extraordinarily detailed survey of sources for the history of collecting in Italy. Arranged by collector name, entries provide biographical information, collection and sale details, references to inventories, and other primary sources and bibliographical notes. The bibliography is divided into sections for manuscripts, published books and articles, exhibition catalogs, and sales records. Future vols. in preparation.

GENERAL WORKS

- S5 L'âge d'or du mécénat (1598–1661): actes du colloque international CNRS (mars 1983), Le mécénat en Europe, et particulièrement en France avant Colbert. Paris, Ed. de C.N.R.S., 1985. 440p.

40 diverse papers from an international colloquium sponsored by the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique devoted to examining the role of arts patronage in France during the ancien régime. Though of uneven quality these "contributions purvey a quantity of new information and help make this vol. an indispensable repository of facts on early seventeenth-century patrons and their proteges."—Review, Journal of modern history, v.59, Sept. 1987, p.555. Covers architecture, the decorative arts, literature, and theater, as well as painting, sculpture, and graphic arts.

Selective contents: (1) Les mécènes; (2) Les protégés des mécènes: fidèles, clients, fournisseurs; La condition sociale des écrivains, des artistes, des savants; (3) Les thèmes et les oeuvres.

- S6 The age of the marvelous. Ed. by Joy Kenseth. Hanover, N.H., Hood Museum of Art, Dartmouth College (Distr. by the Univ. of Chicago Pr., 1991). 485p. il. (part col.), plates.

Published in conjunction with the exhibition, Hood Museum of Art (1991), and other locations. While frequently emphasizing the "scientific" nature of collecting in the 16th and 17th centuries, this ambitious and successful catalog also focuses on the role of art in early collections. Nine essays precede detailed, well-documented entries for 225 objects. The extensive bibliography is strong in works published before 1775 as well as modern literature.

Contents: The age of the marvelous: an introduction, by Joy Kenseth; The aesthetics of the marvelous: the wondrous work of art in a wondrous world, by James V. Mirollo; "A world of wonders in one closet shut," by Joy Kenseth; Strange new worlds: mapping the heavens and the earth's great extent, by James A. Welu; Remarkable humans and singular beasts, by William B. Ashworth, Jr.; A paradise of plants: exotica, rarities, and botanical fantasies, by Elisabeth B. Macdougall; Love, monsters, movement, and machines: the marvelous in theaters, festivals, and gardens, by Mark S. Weil; Trompe-l'oeil painting: visual deception or natural truths?, by Arthur K. Wheelock, Jr.; "A time fertile in miracles": miraculous events in and through art, by Zirka Zar-emba Filipczak.

One of the first general works written in English, still useful for an initial approach to the subject. Taylor's style is readable, the amount of material covered is impressive, and many important early published sources are mentioned in the text and included in the bibliography. Three appendices contain short essays on monetary values, ancient collections in Egypt, and a translation of an extract from Sansovino's Venetia, città nobilissima e singolare (1581). Minimally illustrated.

Trans. of Hofkünstler: zur Vorgeschichte des modernen Kunstlers. Köln, Dumont, 1985.

In this vol. the author, building on nearly twenty years of research and publication, "attempts to describe the ways in which art and artists were received at the courts of western Europe from early modern times and argues that these contacts were ultimately responsible for the fact that we look upon art as a higher spiritual or intellectual faculty."—Introduction.

Contents: Part 1: The artist between city and court: (1) Stages of mutual influence, the beginnings of organized court art and their consequences, the divorce between the civic and courtly spheres, Italian courts and city republics around 1400, the theoretical dimension, the appointment of Renaissance artists to positions at court, continued tension between city and court; (2) Artistic agents, city administrators, merchants, humanists, artists, applications for court appointments, initiatives emanating from the courts. Part 2: Artists at court: (3) The position of artists at court, admission to the court family, forms of remuneration: securing a livelihood, forms of remuneration: regular salaries, the work of art without price, The conferment of titles, list of artists granted titles up to 1800; (4) *Offices and functions, public building projects: the artistic director, public monuments: the court sculptor, artistic relations between the courts: the court painter, the court portrait: the "counterfeiter," art and artists in the prince's private domain. Twelve papers selected from the Temple University symposium, Matronage: women as patrons and collectors of art, 1300–1800 (1990). These studies reflect "the larger impulse in the field of art history to recover the history of women's involvement with art. While there has been considerable interest in female artists during the past two decades, there has not been a commensurate expression about the important contributions that women have made to artistic culture as patrons, collectors, or connoisseurs."—Introd. Scholarly notes and references throughout.

S93 Clunas, Craig. Superfluous things: material culture and social status in early modern China. Cambridge, Polity, 1991. vii, 219p. il., plates.

A study examining the perception of objects based on the author's analysis of material culture dating from the Ming Dynasty and the surviving literature of connoisseurship of the 16th and 17th centuries. This work "is an enormously suggestive book, leading the reader off in a variety of interesting directions—to consideration of the nature of authorship in the Ming, the relations between craftsmen and patrons, comparative uses of the past, and the techniques of art dealership and forgery, to mention just a few."—Social history, v.18, no.3, Oct., 1993, p.395. Two appendixes list the editors of Treatise on superfluous things and selected prices for works of art and antique artifacts c.1560–1620.

Contents: (1) Books about things: The literature of Ming Connoisseurship; (2) Ideas about things: themes in Ming connoisseurship literature; (3) Words about things: the language of Ming connoisseurship; (4) Things of the past: uses of the antique in Ming material culture; (5) Things in motion: Ming luxury objects as commodities; (6) Anxieties about things: consumption and class in Ming China.

T. Cultural Heritage

A distinctive feature of the 20th century is the frequency with which movable and non-movable material products of our cultural heritage are dispersed or destroyed. A parallel trend has been the attempt to impede such dispersal and destruction, either through practical preservation techniques (conservation), or through policies and legislation aimed at establishing standards for the administration and protection of, and commerce in, cultural property at local, national, or international levels. This field is in a state of bibliographic flux: it is a relatively new area of investigation; scientific research encourages an ongoing evolution in preservation training and practice; and in the law and policy arena, case law and intergovernmental/political shifts propel changes in attitudes and governance.

The objective of this chapter is to map this bibliographically complex and expanding terrain. Given the parameters of this guide, the focus will be on interdisciplinary rather than on purely scientific or legal texts. The following subject areas are not specifically treated: art law (as opposed to cultural heritage legislation), case law, intellectual property law, museology, and performing arts law.

With the exception of those topics that have a longer history of study and research (e.g., fakes and forgeries, paintings conservation), most publications cited are recent and, where possible and appropriate, in English. While for the purposes of structural consistency with the rest of this volume the efforts of individual countries (or cultures) feature prominently, an attempt has been made to underscore the supranational characteristics of protection and preservation, not only because preservation practices are (or should be) universal, but also because many of the issues addressed transcend political boundaries. Judicious cross-references within this chapter will be helpful in identifying these overriding themes.

While GLAH 2 departs from its predecessor in devoting a separate chapter to Cultural Heritage, various titles listed throughout GLAH 1 are pertinent to this chapter. We have not attempted to draw attention to those titles through cross-references here but refer the interested reader to GLAH 1 and its index.

This chapter is divided into two parts: Preservation, followed by Preservation Law, Policy, and Ethics.

PART 1 PRESERVATION

BIBLIOGRAPHY

- T1 A bibliography on historical organization practices. Ed. by Frederick L. Rath and Marilyn Rogers O'Connell. Nashville, American Association for State and Local History, [1975-84]. 6v.

Useful collection of partially annotated bibliographies covering journal articles and monographs essential for an understanding of the foundations of the modern conservation movement. Covers books and journal articles. Although somewhat outdated, the bibliographies are useful for the thoughtful organization of subject-areas into sub-categories that accurately describe each field.

Contents: (1) Historic preservation; (2) Care and conservation of collections; (3) Interpretation; (4) Documentation of collections; (5) Administration; (6) Research.

Index in all vols.

- T2 Collections care: a basic reference shelflist. Based on the Collections Care Information Service, a project of the National Institute for the Conservation of Cultural Property. Supported by the Institute of Museum Services and The Bay Foundation. Ed. by Amparo R. de Torres. Washington, D.C., National Institute for the Conservation of Cultural Property, 1990. 183p.

Unannotated bibliography comprising references to books and individual essays in books, conference papers, government reports, and journal articles. The period 1954-1990 is covered.

Contents: Basic collections care; Architectural conservation; Collections management law, ethics and policies; Collections storage; Emergency preparedness and response; Environmental control: illumination; Environmental control: pest management; Environmental control: pollution; Environmental control: temperature and relative humidity; Exhibitions and packing for shipment; Informatics of documentation; Safety and health.

- T3 The conservation of cultural property: a basic reference shelflist. Ed. by James Bernstein. Washington, D.C., National Institute for the Conservation of Cultural Property, [1985]. 45p.

Contents: General conservation readings and references; Conservation periodicals and journals; Conservation bibliographies; Education and training; Written and photographic documentation; Conservation safety; History and technology of materials; Conservation science; Analysis and authenticity; Museum environment, security, and care of collections; Archaeology/ethnography; Stone and masonry; Architecture and building materials; Metals; Glass and ceramic; Wood and furniture; Fibers and textiles; Paper, parchment, books, library and archive materials; Leather; paintings and paint; Photographic materials; Miscellaneous; A partial list of conservation publications suppliers; Organizations listed by initials.

- T4 Kahn, M. M., and Kumar, Devendra. Conservation: a selective bibliography. 2d ed. Lucknow [India], National Research Laboratory for Conservation of Cultural Property, 1994. 56p.

Unannotated bibliography covering books and journal articles.

Contents: (A) Causes of deterioration; (B) Materials used in conservation; (C) Conservation: general; (D) Scientific analysis in conservation; (E) Metals; (F) Stone; (G) Ceramics, terracotta & glass; (H) Coins and medals; (I) Wood and wooden furniture; (J) Textiles; (K) Paper, archives and library materials; (L) Manuscripts in paper, palm leaves and birch bark; (M) Paintings; (N) Paints, dyes, pigments and varnish; (O) Photographic and audiovisual materials; (P) Leather and skin; (Q) Bones and ivory; (R) Architecture, monuments and building materials; (S) Archaeological materials; (T) Ethnological materials; natural history materials; (U) Miscellaneous materials; (V) Miscellaneous materials; Appendix I: Journals relating to conservation.

DIRECTORIES

- T6 1985 directory, National Trust member organizations. Washington, D.C., National Trust for Historic Preservation, 1985. 75p.

"Organized regionally, according to the geographic jurisdictions of the National Trust regional offices. Information about each regional office precedes each section and member organizations are then listed alphabetically by state, city and organization name."

Contents: Mid-Atlantic region; Midwest region; Mountains/Plains region; Texas/New Mexico; Northeast region; Southern region; Western region; Foreign countries.

- T7 American Institute for Conservation of Historic & Artistic Works. Directory. Washington, D.C., AIC., 1982(?)—.

Previously variously titled either AIC directory or Membership directory.

Important annual reference resource for conservation practitioners and administrators. Provides regional, national, and international information concerning members, committees, related organizations, suppliers and services, conservation terminology, code of ethics, bylaws, funding agencies, and training programs.

- T8 Conservation sourcebook. The Conservation Unit, Museums & Galleries commission. [Rev. ed.] London, HMSO, 1991. 122p.

1st ed. titled Conservation sourcebook for conservators, craftsmen, and those who have historic objects in their care. London, Crafts Advisory Committee, 1979.

"Information on organisations of relevance to the conservation of artefacts and buildings."—Introd.

Contents: Directory of organisations; Appendix 1: International conservation organisations; Appendix 2: Full-time training courses in conservation.

Subject index, p.111-22.

- T9 Heritage directory = Le répertoire du patrimoine. [Ottawa], Heritage Canada Foundation, [1974]–(1998).

In English and French.

Also available on the internet through the Canadian Heritage Information Network (CHIN).

Lists more than 600 Canadian national, provincial, and municipal organizations, government departments and agencies, as well as a selected list of foreign and international groups that are engaged in heritage activities. Extremely clearly presented.

Contents: (1) National associations; (2) Federal government departments; (3) Federal government agencies; (4) The Canadian ministry; (5) Provincial and territorial associations; (6) Provincial and territorial government departments; (7) Provincial and territorial ministers of natural and cultural sites; (8) Municipal heritage organizations; (9) Major museums; (10) University and college programs; (11) Community foundations; (12) Foreign and international organizations; Selected subject index.

1st ed., 1975. 4th ed., International index on training in conservation of cultural property = Répertoire international des institutions donnant une formation pour la conservation des biens culturels. Marina del Rey, Getty Conservation Institute, 1987.

"Designed to provide information on a wide variety of training opportunities at different levels and in various fields of conservation and restoration worldwide. The different types of programs include specialized multiyear courses leading to a degree, short-term courses for specialists, as well as conservation courses offered within programs leading to degrees in other fields."—Pref.

Contents: How to use the directory; Course listings.

Subject index, p.157–64. Country codes, p.167.

DICTIONARIES AND ENCYCLOPEDIAS

- T11 Clydesdale, Amanda. Chemicals in conservation: a guide to possible hazards and safe use. 2d ed. [Edinburgh], Scottish Society for Conservation and Restoration, [1990]. [43]p.

Alphabetical listing of chemicals used in conservation, with descriptions.

Glossary, p.15–17. Bibliography, p.18–19. Index, p.20–43.

- T12 A glossary of terms useful in conservation: with a supplement on reporting the condition of antiquities. Comp. by Elizabeth Phillimore. Ottawa, Canadian Museums Association, 1976. 45p.

Dictionary-format series of definitions, specifically covering the following fields: ceramics, enameling, general terms, glass, metals, miscellaneous materials, paintings, textiles, wood, and furniture.

Reporting the condition of antiquities, p.35–45. A glossary of terms useful in conservation: with a supplement on reporting the condition of antiquities.

- T13 Savage, George. The art and antique restorers' handbook: a dictionary of materials and processes used in the restoration & preservation of all kinds of works of art. [Rev. ed.] N.Y., Praeger, [1967]. 142p.

Useful compilation, with some definitions long as four pages of text.

Bibliography, p.133. Index, p.135–42.

HISTORIES AND HANDBOOKS

- T14 Adhesives and consolidants: preprints of the contributions to the Paris congress, 2–8 September 1984. Ed. by N. S. Brommelle . . . [et al.] London, International Institute for Conservation of Historic and Artistic Works, [1984]. 222p. il., tables.

Extremely useful resource. 47 contributions by leading practitioners and researchers in the field. Synthetic and natural adhesives, and their changing uses for a variety of media, are considered.

Bibliographical references follow most papers.

- T15 American Institute for the Conservation of Historic and Artistic Works (AIC). Code of ethics and guidelines for practice of the American Institute for Conservation of Historic and Artistic Works. Washington, D.C., AIC, 1964–.

1st formulation, "The Murray Pease report . . . report of the Murray Pease Committee: I.I.C. American standards of practice and professional relations for conservators," in Studies in conservation, v.9, pt.3 Aug. 1964, p.116–21. 2d formulation and 1st individual ed., [New York, IIC-American Group, 1968] titled The Murray Pease report. Code of ethics for art conservators. 3d formulation (Washington, D.C., AIC, 1985) titled Code of ethics. Standards of practice. Most recent revision in AIC news, Nov. 1999: 6. Reprinted annually in the American Institute for Conservation of Historic & Artistic Works Directory (GLAH 2:T7).

The primary purpose of this code remains "to provide accepted criteria against which a specific procedure or operation can be measured when a question as to its adequacy has been raised."—Studies in conservation, v.9, pt.3, p.116. Continually reevaluated and revised by the AIC membership and the AIC's Ethics and Standards Committee.

- T16 The art of the conservator. Ed. by Andrew Oddy. Washington, D.C., Smithsonian Institution Pr., 1992. 192p. il. (part col.)

Collection of essays aiming to elucidate for a broad audience what the museum world means by the term "conservation." For this reason "outstanding artefacts of international importance conserved using a wide range of materials and numerous scientific techniques of investigation" (Introd.), and themselves made of a variety of different materials, are presented. Excellent illustrations.

T21 ———. Teoria del restauro. [Torino], Einaudi, [1977]. 154p.

1st ed., Roma, Edizioni di storia e letteratura, 1963. The first ed. also included a bibliography of Brandi's publications, a brief biography, and 40 plates illustrating his arguments.

Pioneering publication on conservation methodology, based on lectures delivered by Brandi at the Istituto Centrale di Restauro, founded by him in 1939, and directed by him 1939–1961. Brandi advocated that the objective of conservation should not be to return a work to its original aspect ("restoration"). Rather, he argued, any missing parts of a work of art should undergo only minimal intervention, thus reducing the risk of misinterpreting the artist's original intentions. Brandi also rejected the then-widespread practice in conservation of eliminating subsequent additions or modifications that made up part of the object's history, and instead argued for their retention in the conserved item. Brandi's ideas became an integral part of conservation theory and practice in Italy, spreading rapidly to other countries. In 1972 Brandi's theories were incorporated into the Carta del restauro.

T312 The destruction of the country house: 1875–1975. [By Roy Strong . . . (et al.)] London, Thames and Hudson, 1974. 192p. il.

Published in conjunction with the exhibition, Victoria and Albert Museum (1973). The 26 contributions discuss the heritage role of the country house, primarily in England, Scotland, and Wales, but also in the U.S. Both book and exhibition marked a significant turning point in the fortunes of the country house. All the illustrations in this book show buildings that by 1973 no longer existed. In addition to the chapters listed here, there is a series of profiles of individual country houses.

Buenos Aires, Univ. de Buenos Aires, Facultad de Arquitectura, Diseño y Urbanismo; Instituto de Arte Americano e Investigaciones Estéticas "Mario J. Buschiazzi," [1990]. 270p. il.

Based on the author's doctoral thesis (UNAM, Facultad de Arquitectura, 1984), this important publication surveys the history of, and theory behind, the preservation movement in Central America, setting it within its political, economic, and social framework. Focuses on theft and outright destruction of cultural property. The emphasis is on pre-colonial archeological sites (including early excavation reports); case histories drawn from Belize, Guatemala, Honduras, and Mexico. The author seeks to demonstrate that the conservation of the cultural heritage is a deeply political fact in the preservation of cultural identities.

Notas, p.235–55. Bibliografía, p.257–70.

Moscow, Ministry of Culture of the Russian Federation; St. Petersburg, State Hermitage Museum; in assoc. with N.Y., Abrams, 1995. 292p. il. (chiefly col.)

French trans., Paris, Martinière, 1995; German trans., München, Kindler, 1995; Italian trans., Milano, Leonardo, 1995.

Ground-breaking catalog of the exhibition, State Hermitage Museum (1995) of French paintings, 1827-1927, from German collections, clandestinely stored at the Hermitage since the end of World War II. Each painting is reproduced in a full-page color plate, accompanied by smaller black-and-white comparative photographs and an extensive catalog entry.

T353 The "Sacco di Budapest" and depredation of Hungary, 1938-1949: works of art missing from Hungary as a result of the Second World War: looted, smuggled, captured, lost and destroyed art works, books and archival documents: preliminary and provisional catalogue: includes archives photographs and document from Hungarian public archives, as well as from libraries, museums and private collections. Comp. by Láslo Mravik. Budapest, Hungarian National Gallery, 1998. 468p. il., ports.

Documents the "especially tragic consequences" (Introd.) of World War II for Hungarian art, destroyed, or looted first by the Germans and then by Soviet troops. The provisional catalog of these works "constitutes official proof that research is being pursued in Hungary into art works and cultural trea-asures removed from the country in tempestuous times or taken abroad in some other unlawful manner."—Pref. Includes selected documents of the period relating to the dispersal of public and private collections. Illustrations of missing art works and interiors in which they were displayed, and of collection inventories.

Important auctions, p.22–24. Important exhibitions up to 1945, p.25–29. A history of Hungarian art collections, 15th–20th centuries: selected literature and other references, p.30–55. Index of more important place-names, p.65.

1st ed., 1988.

Listing of mostly non-movable cultural property of national or regional significance in Switzerland. Although drawn up as a result of Switzerland's having signed the 1954 Hague Convention for the Protection of Cultural Property in the Event of Armed Conflict, this listing is of relevance in a much wider context, and each edition reflects the Swiss growing awareness of the significance of cultural heritage held within its borders.

The listing is in alphabetical order by canton, then by commune. For each commune heritage items of national and regional significance are identified separately. Geographical coordinates for each item are also given.

Gemeindeverzeichnis = Liste des communes = Elenco dei comuni, p.17–31.
